Xavier Deneux was born in 1969 in Calvados. After high school, he applied to ESAG (École supérieure d’art graphique) Penninghen and graduated in 1994. He is passionate about Eastern European graphic design and began to work on various books with his thesis supervisor, Roman Cieslewicz. He then gained a great deal of experience in advertising and packaging. His career took a turn in 2000 when he met the founder of Mila Éditions, and illustrated his first picture book, “L’École du cirque”. From then on, Xavier Deneux began drawing for children full-time in various sectors, such as the press, publishing, games and cartoons. He started to create his own collections, driven by a desire to innovate. He lives in Paris.

Claire Zucchelli-Romer likes to help children learn while playing.

Imagine kiddies' fingers becoming little characters to animate! That's the idea oft these books, designed like a dance floor! These books - where play is the key word - develop motor skills and stimulate children's imagination.

Even as a child, she cut out coloured paper, drew and created stories. She spent her childhood in a family of artists, where she sharpened her eye and stimulated her thirst for discovery.
She became a doctor. She has three children. She creates CYZRCREA with Y. Romer and starts to create cartoons and visual art objects. She is passionate about creating books: book-games, book-objects, pop-up sculpture books, book-poems. She believes in the power of books to help people discover the world.

ÉDOUARD MANCEAU

‘I am infinitely more alive when I am with children than with adults’

Handling the art of derision and burlesque, Edouard Manceau offers texts that know how to speak to children without tackling the problems of everyday life head on.

His books do not function as mirrors of everyday life. But they are very close to what children experience. But it’s not dated. His books cross the ages.

Édouard Manceau was born in 1969 in Vendée, where he grew up in the countryside. At school, he preferred to play with his brothers, sisters, and cousins. He began to work with children when he was 16, and really enjoyed these interactions. He joined the Ecole des Beaux-Arts d’Angers at the age of 22 and graduated with a degree in visual communications. After travelling the world in the 1990s, he began to exhibit his work as a painter. Then he began to write stories for little ones and his first book was published in 1999. He has written more than one hundred children’s books, often translated abroad.

‘For toddlers, I like to imagine the book as a cuddly toy that encourages them to play’

He is one of those artists for whom childhood is there, right at the edge of the eyes. His mischievousness is on his pupils as on those of his characters. Characters who are not afraid of the pull-tabs, the riddles, and even less afraid of appearing a little silly. With a black outline, he invents a thousand stories. With a single colour, he knows how to make them funny. With a simple animation, he brings out the laughter.

Tristan is one of those who you want to see grow up while hoping that they will always keep their childlike soul, which is simply genius.

Tristan Mory was born in 1981 in Clichy (Hauts-de-Seine). He studied mechanical engineering and then visual communications, but his dream was always to draw – which he had been doing from a young age – and to work with children. A fan of illustration and a children’s book collector, he began his career as a graphic designer at Milan Presse: “J’apprends à lire”, “Toboggan”, “Toupie”, “Histoires pour les petits”. He gradually became a full-time freelance illustrator and published his first book with Actes Sud Junior, and then, his first picture books published by Milan. He loves pop-ups and enjoys exploring the mechanisms of interactive books, in a popular and timeless style that is constantly evolving. Tristan Mory lives and works in Toulouse.

Antoine Dole, aka Mr Tan, is a comic book writer and prolific author. His comics have been published in both books (Bayard, Actes Sud, Casterman, Gallimard BD, Glénat, etc.) and children's magazines ("Le Journal de Mickey", Bayard Presse, Milan Presse). Antoine Dole has also written a number of widely acclaimed and award-winning manga books and novels for teenagers and young adults. He is best known for his outspoken and brazen character, Mortelle Adèle, who he created when he was 14 years old. Through her light-hearted and mischievous adventures, he explores childhood fantasies and the question of norms and differences. Beyond the storylines, Mr Tan therefore shaped Adèle's personality and sketched her very first outlines in his schoolbooks.

Time to Play

Les imagiers Babille - Je joue

Illustrated by Aurélie Abolivier

"Babille", the book collection for babies from birth. In the picture book "Je joue", little ones discover their first words around one of their favorite activities: playing!

Playing isn't just fun for babies—it's essential! Through play, they discover their bodies, connect with others, and explore their surroundings. The picture book "Je joue" dives into the fascinating world of babies and highlights their favorite games.
As the sixth title in the Babille collection, this sturdy board book invites parents and babies to read together, sharing a tender and meaningful moment. Focused on babies' familiar environment and daily experiences, the books in this collection are designed to match their early reading skills, nurture their curiosity, and strengthen their bond with loved ones.

• Grabbing, swinging, tasting, dancing... A baby's life is full of play! With this sturdy board book, little ones can put words to the actions they do every day while having fun.

• A must-have theme for this age group: play is a natural activity and a fundamental need for babies. It contributes to their healthy motor, sensory, intellectual, and emotional development.

• From solo play to shared fun, with or without objects, each page reveals a new way to play. This book is a tribute to babies' curiosity, agility, and creativity!

Oh! Baby, Look! Cards and a Mirror for Fun and Loving Playtime

Oh ! Bébé, regarde ! Des cartes et un miroir pour des jeux tendres à partager.

Illustrated by Lucie Brunellière

The Babille collection continues to grow with a new sensory playset: a box of 20 large, high-contrast picture cards, designed for gentle and engaging activities to share with baby from birth!

From the very first months of life, babies are curious about the world around them. Their vision is still developing, but they are highly responsive to contrasting colors and eager for interaction with adults.
Featuring poetic images that stimulate visual awareness and simple, gentle activities to share, this set is designed for meaningful early learning moments!

• In total, 39 images and a mirror to explore! The cards are organized into four engaging games: a shape observation game, a peek-a-boo game, a sound association game, and a body awareness discovery game.

• A timeless classic in early learning games, highly praised by early childhood professionals, picture cards are a great tool for first parent-baby interactions. They encourage communication and stimulate baby's senses.

• Lucie Brunellière's poetic illustrations are perfectly suited to newborns' sensitivity and visual abilities. Her use of contrasts and dynamic lines beautifully captures their attention and sparks their curiosity.

• This beautiful keepsake box set includes 20 large-format, thick cardboard cards with rounded corners, easy for little hands to hold, along with a parent guide.

Inside Your Belly

Les récits Babille - Dans ton ventre

By Aurélie Sarrazin • Illustrated by Marie Leghima

This new album of the Babille collection, tells the story of a baby's daily life before birth and the parents eagerly preparing for the big day. A joyful and touching tale about prenatal life, perfect for reading together, snuggled up close.

In "Dans ton ventre", the baby shares its daily life inside the mother's womb—discovering sounds, hearing mom's heartbeat, dad's voice, and laughter. The first sensations come to life: wiggling, sucking, floating. Mom's belly is a cocoon, a home, and an incredible playground!
Throughout the album, we see the baby playing, growing, and thriving in this unique environment while forming a bond with their parents. They, too, live to the rhythm of their baby and prepare for their arrival. The story unfolds, shifting perspectives from inside to outside, leading up to the long-awaited birth—the start of a brand-new adventure for everyone!

• A second title by Aurélie Sarrazin in the Les récits Babille sub-collection: touching stories designed to create a special bond with baby.

• A poetic and delicate story about prenatal life. Told in the first person, the baby shares its in-utero adventure filled with sensations, discoveries, play, and interactions—all leading up to the big day of birth.

• Marie Leghima's delicate illustrations, sometimes figurative, sometimes abstract, beautifully capture these first tender moments between parents and baby, filled with excitement and anticipation.

How Do You Do?

Comment ça va?

By Edouard Manceau

A board book to help little ones understand facial expressions and emotions

How are you?
Sometimes I'm OK, sometimes I'm not. Sometimes I feel sad or angry, and get upset and cry. Then, I feel better.
What about you?
We all feel emotions, happy and sad ones that can be seen on our faces.
Can you recognize them?

It's normal to feel upset, cry or get angry. That's life. What matters is making yourself feel better and opening up to others to say, "what about you?"

My Little Emotions

Mes petites émotions

Illustrated by Daniel Roode

From the age of 18 months, children recognize indications of emotions in the voice and facial expressions. This new pop-up book is designed to help them learn how.

This all-boards book presents a series of simple scenes evoking young children's everyday lives, to help them put a name to their emotions and understand them.
Each double-page presents one emotion and the situation that caused it: When the child makes the movement, they discover the emotion on the character's face and reveal the object that caused that emotion. This 'cause and consequence' scenario lets the child deduct and understand the emotions according to the situations.
7 emotions to discover: happiness, sadness, fear, surprise, anger, disgust, calm.

Potty Training

Sur le pot !

By Nathalie Choux

Whether they're ready, interested or just want to play, little ones will easily relate and discover all the different ways of going to the potty.

This hardcover book proposes a succession of simple little scenes in which the child will be able to recognise himself: going to the potty with his toys, with his books, in pairs, and even arriving too late...
After each sequence of two double pages, the child sees the animal through a window and discovers what it is doing: a funny game of hide-and-seek and riddles. Noisy pee, happy pee, pee in a hurry...

One little finger tickles, two little fingers pinch, three little fingers climb... Five little fingers to bring to life before baby's eyes, to make them laugh and stimulate their senses!

A clever and tender "peek-through" book to bring to life with your fingers! A special moment of bonding and affection between parent and child. These first finger play activities, simple and accessible, support body awareness, language development, and the acquisition of early concepts from as early as 6 months.

Around 6 months of age, babies begin using and coordinating their hands and fingers to explore their bodies and the world around them. To entertain them and help develop their motor skills, here comes a new interactive playbook—one to read and play with using your fingers.

At first, the parent mimics and animates the characters by placing a finger behind the right-hand page and sliding it through the hole. Then, at the end of the book, the child is invited to join in and reveal the surprise ending. Playful and engaging, this book is perfectly suited for babies from 6 months up to toddlers aged 3. It offers multiple levels of reading and understanding. - The youngest will be captivated by the mimed storytelling, while older toddlers will imitate the gestures—developing fine motor skills, language, and early learning (such as body awareness and counting to five).

Tristan Mory

Tristan Mory became a full-time freelance illustrator, and published his very first book with Actes Sud Junior, Patabulle – Feet on the Ground, in 2011. A fan of pop-up books, he enjoys designing the mechanics of interactive books, with a constantly evolving style that aims to be both popular and timeless.

If You Were...

Si tu étais...

Illustrated by Thierry Bedouet

In If You Were..., baby is invited to play with their reflection in a mirror. From 18 months old, toddlers are encouraged to mimic animal expressions in front of the mirror.

Frown like the grumpy bear, puff your cheeks like the greedy squirrel, make your lips tremble like the silly sheep...This sweet and funny interactive book invites little ones to play with their own image. Each double-page spread features an animal showing a facial expression or movement for the child to imitate in the mirror on the right-hand page. In total, 10 animals to mimic—10 simple and affectionate gestures to help develop facial motor skills, body awareness, and self-recognition.

By 18 months, babies begin to recognize themselves in the mirror. This marks the beginning of self-awareness and the understanding of concepts like "I," "you," and "we." Known as the mirror stage, this period is ideal for games of imitation and observation in front of a mirror, which support emotional and cognitive development.

At the end of the book, the parent is invited to join the game by covering the child with kisses in front of the mirror—a sweet and intimate ending for a shared moment of joy.

The latest titles in the collection, My Little Emotions and Bravo, Little Fingers!, have sold 8,300 and 6,500 copies respectively in under a year.

The Dancing Fingers

Les petits doigts qui dansent

By Claire Zucchelli-Romer

Are your little fingers twitching, are they tingling? Are they wiggling, are they squirming? It's clear, your little fingers want to dance! A new edition of the interactive book, with cut-out shapes in the pages, by Claire Zucchelli-Romer.

In this interactive book, little ones play and explore by touching the spaces created within the pages. All they need to do is follow the movements with their fingertips, guided by the fluorescent shapes carved into the pages.

"The Dancing Fingers" gets a fresh new look with a more festive and colorful cover design, a reduced format that's easier for little hands to handle, and an elegant all-board finish without covering edges.

Les petits doigts qui dansent

Emotions at Their Fingertips

Les émotions au bout des petits doigts

By Claire Zucchelli-Romer

A poetic, playful pop-up book about young children's emotions. Tiny tots are encouraged to move their fingers to express their feelings.

All the little fingers are so excited, they have lots of emotions to express!
Bing, bang, bong! When they are happy, they leap into the air.
When they are bored, they tap on the table: tap. tap. tap.
Sometimes, when they are angry, they scratch. Grrr!
The author, Claire Zucchelli, drew on her expertise in psychomotricity to bring us this pop-up book, tons of fun and educational.
An innovating game-book that develops tiny tots' awareness!

• In the same vein as Petits doigts qui dansent and Petit rond rouge devient grand, a new and original way to talk to children from the age of 1 about their emotions.

• Each emotion is associated with a gesture that the child must copy. In this way, tiny tots become aware of their bodies and link their physique with their feelings.

• A book that teaches infants to communicate in a new way with gesture, to develop their language. This approach is very popular today, sign language for babies is increasingly appreciated and used in nurseries.

Baby Power - All Equal from the Cradle

Baby Power - Tous égaux dès le berceau

By Soledad Bravi

Be fed up with pink... or blue, cry if you feel like it, dance or fight... Here's a funny, cheeky picture book in which babies speak out and rebel for gender equality in early childhood.

20 babies speak out and assert themselves against sexist stereotypes, at a time when 2/3 of women feel they have been raised differently.
Soledad Bravi humorously denounces the sexist prejudices to which babies are subjected, and reminds us of their right to develop their full potential. A striking picture book that will make the little ones laugh and the grown-ups think!
This project is the result of a partnership between "Picoti" magazine and Crescendo (a network of early childhood and parenting associations) to produce and distribute a guide promoting gender equality from the cradle onwards.
Soledad Bravi, a versatile artist with a mischievous sense of line and humor, recognized for her talent. Highly appreciated by the public and professionals alike, she has over 153,000 followers on Instagram and her famous "Livre des bruits" has sold 200,000 copies.

Soledad Bravi (Paris) is a prominent figure in illustration, whether for adults (weekly in «Elle,» the «Les Paresseuses» collection with Marabout, collaborations with Pierre Hermé or the «Colette» store…) or for children (with l'École des loisirs or Gallimard, as well as in dishware, linens, stationery, etc.).

Solid, meticulously-crafted, small-format design to fit babies' little hands.

A board book with cut-outs to play with fear, onomatopoeia and the dark.

2 big yellow eyes on a black background, a “Hoo-hoo" sound, what's that? When you turn the page, you're reassured that the eyes are those of an owl. With clever cut-outs in the pages, children can play at scaring themselves and immediately reassure themselves.
This is the first collaboration with Georgette, a well-known author-illustrator: the 'Monsieur Monsieur' series for Nathan (4,000 copies sold), 'Famille' for Didier Jeunesse (6,700 copies sold).
A clever album that plays with the must-haves for this age group.

It's time to play! By placing their hand on the book, children can see it metamorphose into a chicken, a sun or even a butterfly!

An interactive book for a moment of complicity between parent and child. Children can start developing their imagination, a hand can be transformed into an animal, a sun, a heart...
Hand-painting is a popular activity with toddlers.
A combination of varnish, to recall the shiny aspect of paint, and relief, for a sensory and playful reading. Children can playfully identify the shape of the hand, which is scaled to their own.

The "Joue avec moi" collection is well established in the early-learning market, with over 80,000 copies sold and +20% in one year.

The Colour Festival

La fête des couleurs

By Thierry Bedouet

The little beasts seem to be very busy. But what are they up to? On each double page, the reader is amazed to discover a new fabric ribbon.

A fabric ribbon of a different colour (red, orange, yellow, green, blue, purple...), appears on each double page. The ribbons are revealed one by one and combine in a colourful final scene! The funny narration puts in scene small animals for a first discovery of the colours. Each illustration highlights a main colour and subtly integrates the visible ribbons which in turn form a festive element: a lantern, garlands, a music box or a cake. "Joue avec moi", the collection that allows parents and children to read together, has been a great success with more than 68,000 copies sold ("Mes petites émotions": 26,000 copies sold, "Bravo, petits doigts!: more than 10,000 copies).

It's Christmas!

C'est Noël !

Illustrated by Ilaria Falorsi • By Anne Blanchard

Christmas is the holiday for little ones: it's the first one they look forward to and truly enjoy from the age of 2!

Christmas is coming soon! The story unfolds over five animated double-page spreads. This morning, baby is decorating the Christmas tree with daddy. In the box, there are lots of garlands and colorful baubles. Baby places a golden garland on a branch. To pass the time, each day baby opens a window of the advent calendar with mommy. Yum, a chocolate was hidden inside! Tomorrow is Christmas, and everyone is excited. Daddy reads a Christmas story, baby looks at the pictures and turns the pages of the book. It's here—today is Christmas! There are presents under the tree: one for mommy, one for daddy, one for baby. Baby tears the wrapping paper—scrraatch!—and opens the box. What's inside? The family is gathered, baby plays with stacking blocks. It's wonderful to be together. Christmas is baby's favorite holiday!

• A must-have holiday theme and a guaranteed success: My First Docs – Christmas sold 6,000 copies, and My Animated Docs – Christmas reached 12,500 copies sold.

• A bestselling collection designed especially for babies, with over 90,000 copies sold in three years. Its interactive features are tailored to the youngest readers—sturdy, easy to handle, and perfect for playing and storytelling.

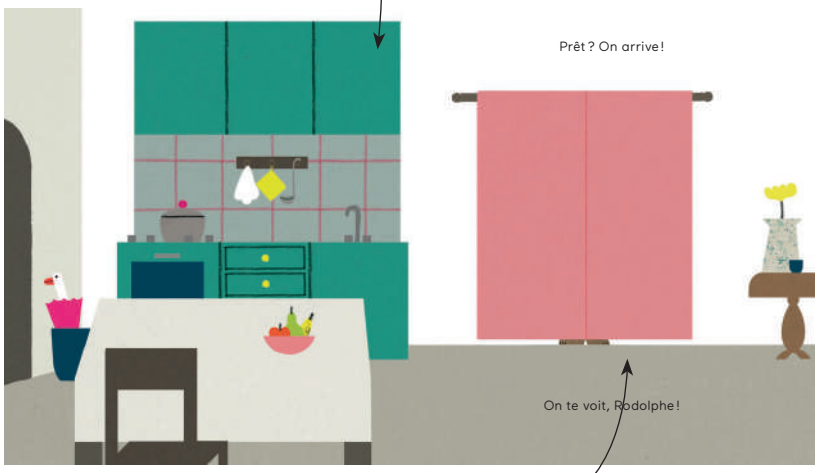
Randolph is bored today. Why don't we play hide and seek? Are you ready? An animated all-cardboard book with 10 flaps to lift to make baby laugh and wake him up.

An animated, interactive book that invites babies to play hide-and-seek with Randolph, an adorable teddy bear. As the pages turn, children play with the flaps to find Randolph. Until the end, when it's up to him to hide!
The game of hide-and-seek is brought to life here with humour and kindness. This game, which is very popular with toddlers, has many virtues for consolidating their emotional security. In particular, it relieves separation anxiety.

Marianna Coppo, a talented author-illustrator, who is publishing her second title in the Milan catalogue. Her first title, «Oh, une crotte», was published in May 2023.

Book made from solid, easy-to-handle cardboard, with 10 flaps to lift.



An animated, tender and funny book

Le chou bidou de ma poulei

By Edouard Manceau

A chick with a hula hoop stumbles onto a nail and gets patched up by a doctor who loves hard candy...

A whacky new adventure with Edouard Manceau's little chick that is guaranteed to make little ones laugh!

A picture book to read aloud, just like the last ones. Edouard Manceau plays with words and sounds and helps children from 2 up improve their pronunciation and comprehension.

A popular whacky character: 15,000 copies sold of the 3 first adventures since 2018, a section in the Toupie magazine, a traveling exhibition "Tout sur ma poule" and a game of bingo.

Édouard Manceau was born in 1969 in Vendée, where he grew up in the countryside. He began to work with children when he was 16, and really enjoyed these interactions. He joined the Ecole des Beaux-Arts d'Angers at the age of 22 and graduated with a degree in visual communications. After travelling the world in the 1990s, he began to exhibit his work as a painter. Then he began to write stories for little ones. His first book was published in 1999. He has written more than one hundred children's books, translated in many languages.

When you're little, you fall over a lot... But you get back up and that's how you grow!

Children start by walking on all fours, like this little bug. Sometimes they fall over, but they always get up again, just like in life!
A board book by renowned children's author and illustrator Edouard Manceau. His picture book, Comment ça va ? has already sold more than 3,500 copies.

Who's the Boss?

C'est qui le chef?

By Émile Jadoul

The giraffe, the elephant, the crocodile, and the tiger are fighting to be the boss.

But in the end, we're quite surprised, because the boss is...?

It's up to the reader to find out!

"I'm the boss," said the giraffe.
"No, I am!" said the elephant, the crocodile, and the tiger.
And then—bam!—a big fight breaks out!
But wait... do you know who the real boss is?
A little story full of humor with a big surprise at the end, perfect for children aged 2 and up.
Written and illustrated by Émile Jadoul, an author deeply in tune with the world of young children.
This is a reissue of a beloved story from the Belle histoire des Bébés series, a proven success (over 3,000 copies sold), now part of the Tout Carton Tout Mignon collection—designed for toddlers aged 2, made in Europe, and presented in a beautiful 19 x 19 cm format.

• A story that humorously portrays children's rivalry and desire for power.

• The final twist, with the child playing with finger puppets, is a delightful nod!

Hey guys, come and have a look! What's this? It's small and chubby. It's got tiny ears and it's not even hairy... Too weird!

I'm small and chubby. I have no hair. And my ears are rikiki...
Who am I?
That's the riddle posed by Tristan Mory in this new animated album with pull-tabs to activate.This time, it's not up to the little reader to answer. He knows full well that the adorable creature in front of his eyes is a baby! It looks just like him. But it's up to the surprise guests, the animals, to guess. As the pages turn, the little reader makes them appear in turn by pressing the pull-tabs. The mouse, the bear, the rabbit, the bird, the pig and the wolf... They all take turns trying to find the right answer.
Once again, Tristan Mory takes up the game of «Who am I?» and renews it with brio. All the ingredients that made his previous titles such a success are here: a simple, clever animation concept, an original graphic style and a tender, humorous message.

A playful and elegant design: a square format, a solid all-cardboard finish well-suited to toddlers from 10 months and many pull-tabs to operate.

Tristan Mory

Tristan Mory began his education in mechanical engineering before pursuing a BTS in visual communication, but his true passion was always drawing—something he's been doing since childhood—and working for children. A fan of illustration and a collector of children's books, he started his career as a graphic designer and copywriter at Milan.

Gradually, he became a full-time independent illustrator and published his first book, "Patabulle – Les Pieds sur terre," in 2011, the same year his daughter was born. He followed this up with two more Patabulle books and the "Les Pops" series. A fan of pop-up books, he enjoys exploring the mechanics of animated books, developing a style that is always evolving—popular and timeless. This can be seen in the success of his works like "Qui suis-je?", "Bravo, petits doigts!", and "Devine quoi!".

Here is the bestselling book in a collector's edition. A larger format, a shiny cover with a fluorescent Pantone for even more enjoyment!

In total, 5 baby animals are hiding in this surprise book, where the child is invited to pull the tabs to hatch the eggs and discover who's inside. Some visual clues are there to help: each egg is «dressed» in the colors of the animal hidden inside. And each one is shown in its natural habitat: the chicken coop for the chick, the icy tundra for the baby penguin, the ocean for the fry... As a twist, there's a big surprise at the end: a chocolate rabbit hidden inside a large Easter egg!

• A larger edition to enhance the joy of discovery, featuring sound animations. The cover visual is even brighter with the addition of a fluorescent touch.

• The animation mechanism, featuring handles to turn that make noise, is sturdy, fun, and easy to handle.

• An interactive album that satisfies all the little ones' desires: onomatopoeia for a rhythmic reading, visual clues to guide them along.

Guess What Happens!

Devine quoi !

By Tristan Mory

A new edition of "Devine quoi!", featuring a new cover.

In each sequence, a "Guess what?" riddle, in the form of a playful chant, engages the child. At first, they see an object: an apple, a flower, an umbrella... By pulling the tab, the object transforms, revealing what's hidden behind it—a squirrel, a frog, a bat, and more.
This concept creates an element of surprise, sparking laughter and joy.
Tristan Mory offers an interactive book centered around visual riddles that encourage the child's imagination and creativity as they explore. The simple graphic style and poetic object choices are perfectly suited for babies starting at 10 months.
An original book for a tender and fun moment with the little ones!

• The first edition sold 20,000 copies.

• A pop-up book with a sturdy all-cardboard finish and two interactive mechanisms: the first, throughout the book, involves pulling the page, which unfolds horizontally to transform the image, and the second mechanism expands vertically.

By Sandra Le Guen • Illustrated by Annelore Parot

After the rain comes the mud, after the night comes a kiss, after the dandelions come seeds everywhere...

A gentle and joyful picture book celebrating the passage of time and life's little joys through a child's eyes
Designed in a landscape format, the vibrant and playful illustrations by Annelore Parot (Le jardin de Basilic) unfold across double-page spreads. These seven before-and-after moments, like tiny stories, follow two children playing outdoors in nature.

• To reveal what comes next (the rain, the night, the dandelions...), the reader must turn the page. In that moment, time passes, and the transformation unfolds (the mud, the kiss, the seeds everywhere)!

Are You Out of Your Mind or What?

Ça va pas la tête ou quoi?

By Édouard Manceau

This is a playful picture book. Give it two eyes, a nose and a mouth, and it'll conjure up a bevy of funny faces! Édouard Manceau's cheerful, inventive and mischievous new book.

A fun way to learn the names of everyday objects. On each double-page spread, the child discovers an object with a head, until the picture book's final flourish: a child's head appears and grimaces at the reader!
This picture book is an invitation to play and share a convivial moment of reading. It also pays tribute to children's boundless imagination and sense of humor.
The simple, rhythmic text plays on the comedy of repetition. Each time a new funny face appears, the narrator takes offense: “Are you out of your mind?”, a recurring gimmick that keeps the little ones laughing more and more.
This is a new album by Édouard Manceau, father of "La poule qui roule en boule", whose adventures have sold over 20,000 copies in bookshops.

Funny Jumble!

Drôle de bric à brac !

By Anne-Sophie Baumann, illustrated by Mylène Rigaudie

What are those 15 little beasts doing rummaging around the house? With their machines, they steal and transport a curious treasure, from the bedroom to the garden. Open the flaps, and you're ready for a site full of surprises!

An interactive book to search the house and grab the treasures hidden inside: open the toy box, pull up the basket to grab pencils, unfold the flap to load the candy trailer, pull up the garden hose...
30 different animations (flap, pop-up, pull-tab, etc.) and a large final pop-up that unfolds, revealing the incredible hut built by the animals in the garden, in the tradition of "Boîtes à surprises" (7,800 copies sold).
As a bonus, each double-page spread includes a game of seek-and-find: can you find the 10 squirrels, the ferret, the mole, the snail and the 2 field mice who are busy playing in every room of the house?
The expertise of Anne-Sophie Baumann, author and creator of interactive books, and the tender, lively illustrations of Mylène Rigaudie: a perfect match!

Emotions

Les émotions

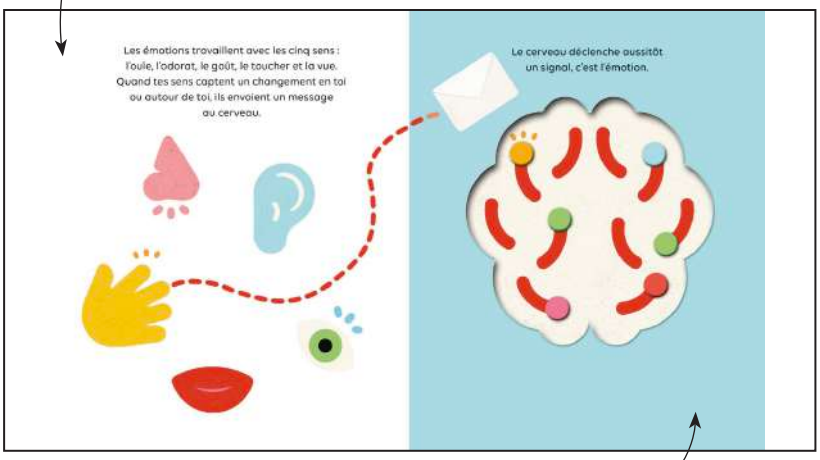
By Xavier Deneux

What is going on in my head and inside my body?

Xavier Deneux explains in simple words some functions of the body, what it is composed of, how it functions to discover the world around.

The collection deals with complex anatomical and scientific notions, validated by professionals. Xavier Deneux cleverly breaks down intricate concepts to make them comprehensible for toddlers. His highly visual vocabulary is the perfect medium for kids to touch and see. The faculties are approached with simplicity and clarity, to best accompany children in their discovery and know their own resources.

Elements in hollow or in volume emphasize the concepts addressed.



The images of Xavier Deneux, symbolic or abstract, bring softness and poetry, and facilitate the understanding of the text.

Gaston's Deliveries

Les livraisons de Gaston

By Laurence Jammes and illustrated by Marc Clamens

Who wants fresh tomatoes? good cheese? sausages? Let's go and deliver them to the shopkeepers!

A manipulative book in which the reader becomes the protagonist of the story.
The child manipulates 10 foods (crab, yoghurt, sugar, etc.) to deliver to shopkeepers as the pages turn, taking part in the story by going to the bakery, the fishmonger's, the cheese shop...
A well-thought-out object, with pieces tucked into the pages so they don't slip off.
This book is an ode to shopkeepers in the context of the local store revival.

What a surprise!

Ça alors !

By Guillaume Bracquemond

Following the success of the first edition (4,600 copies sold), a new collector's edition with a stunning metallic and hardcover binding, just in time for the holidays!

"Well, well, it snowed all night," says the badger upon waking up. On the balconies below—well, well!—the squirrels can't find their scarf, the toucans their glasses, the wild boars their gloves, and the foxes... their children! What could possibly be going on at the foot of the building?
A picture book for toddlers with a stunning metallic cover for the holiday season! A joyful narrative built on repetition with a surprise ending, in the spirit of Susanne Strasser's books.
The illustrations are full of funny little details: at the bottom of each scene, you can spot an ear, a horn, a tail, etc., from the neighbor below. And at the top, you catch a glimpse of the neighbor above on their balcony.

Be Silly! – A Mirror Book for Exploring Emotions

Fais le clown ! - Un livre-miroir pour exprimer ses émotions

Illustrated by Marion Piffaretti

A new, sturdier edition of an interactive book, featuring a mirror on every page to help children recognize, name, and understand the everyday emotions they experience.

Between 2 and a half and 4 years old, children experience a crucial phase where they begin to understand not just their emotions—which they already recognize, especially if they've been talked about—but also the physical expression of their emotions. They start identifying emotions on others' faces, developing empathy, and can then mimic those emotions on their own faces. It's like a clown's mime game, where they act out sadness, joy, lightness, and more.
This book offers children at this stage a series of emotions experienced by our little clown, which they need to recognize, helping them build their empathy skills. Then, they can play with their own emotions in front of the mirror, refining their ability to manage and understand their emotions. At the heart of this interactive reading: humor and self-deprecation!

• Surprise, joy, sadness, pride... a rich book that covers 10 key emotions, making it a valuable tool for introducing empathy to young children—a topic highly praised by educators.

• A carefully crafted book with die-cut pages and rounded corners, making it easy to handle, and a high-quality mirror inserted on the third cover.

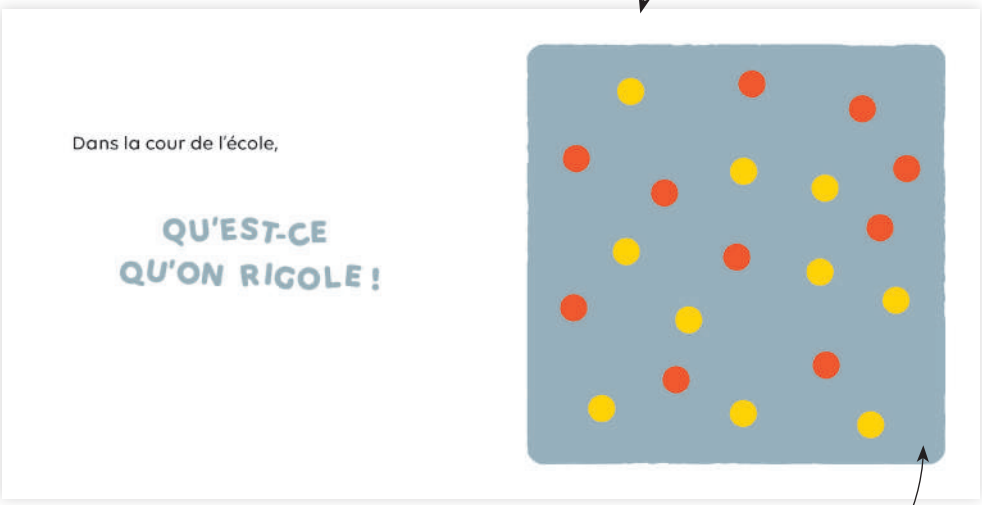
In the schoolyard, we meet, we gather... What a laugh!

Girls and boys pass each other, gather, go round, line up. Throughout the pages, the reader finds all the aspects of the playground, by means of coloured circles symbolising the children. With its simple graphics (a square schoolyard, characters represented by coloured circles), "Dans la cour de l'école" is an easy and fun book to read with your child. The extremely graphic and richly interpreted images give this book the possibility of becoming a tool for awakening to shapes, colours and abstraction. The graphic approach also allows a more emotional reading of the issues at stake in school.

This is a new, more modern edition aimed at today's children for a timeless and educational picture book! The stereotypical pink and blue colours have been replaced by mixed colours to move away from gender-assigned representations.

A story that takes place in an important place in the school, where social relations are played out: the playground.



Illustrations all in abstraction for kids to engage with roles, shapes and colours in a playful and artistic manner

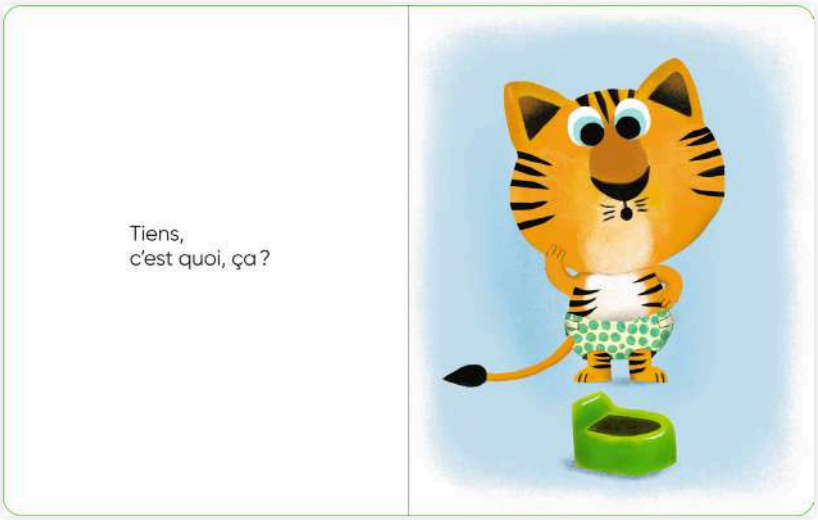
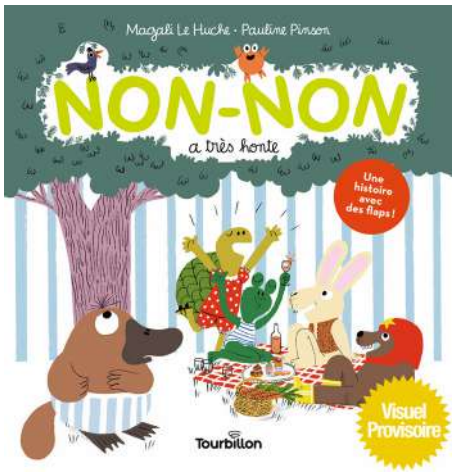
What's that thing? A vase or a pool? A plate or a helmet? A boat or a sink? But no, come on, none of that, it's a pot! Quite simply!

It's a fun, imaginative story in which a whole gang of animals come up with the most varied uses for a pot. The last double-page spread reveals a delightful surprise: a flap with all the animals in ribambelle.
Little readers will be delighted to find out, better than the book's characters, what this familiar object is used for.

A cardboard box in a deliberately smaller, more manageable format than previous books: "Do you want a kiss?" and "Who wants a hug?" by the winning duo Alexandra Garibal and Claudia Bielinsky.





No-No is Very Ashamed

Non-Non a très honte

By Pauline Pinson • Illustrated by Magali Le Huche

A new No-No adventure! A funny and endearing hero, always surrounded by his gang of friends.

Written and illustrated by the renowned Magali Le Huche, No-No is an irresistibly charming platypus who faces (existential) crises in his daily life. Surrounded by his well-meaning (but not always helpful) friends, he navigates these challenges with humor and heart. These laugh-out-loud albums delight both children and parents, making them perfect for reading and rereading!

Pauline Pinson

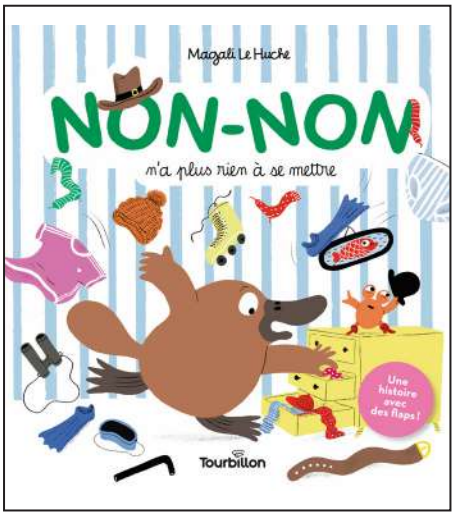
Pauline Pinson works as a director and screenwriter for animation. She is also an author in children's literature. Her albums feature a variety of quirky characters, such as a sheep experiencing an existential crisis, a bear desperately trying to take a nap, a rabbit having a conflicted relationship with a carrot, a fish with a butt-shaped head, and (in collaboration with Magali Le Huche) a platypus in underwear who asks a lot of questions!

Magali Le Huche

Magali Le Huche is a children's book author and illustrator, as well as a comic book artist. She graduated from the Strasbourg School of Decorative Arts and has been creating children's books for various publishers since then. She has worked on the "No-No" and "Jean-Michel the Caribou" series, both adapted into animated series, and she has been creating the musical book series PACO.
She released Nowhere Girl with Dargaud, which won the Pépite BD Prize at Montreuil in 2021 and received a Special Mention at the Bologna Book Fair in 2021.

• This morning, he wakes up with a ridiculous cowlick on his head. There's no way he can go outside like this—Non-Non is far too embarrassed!

• A redesigned edition for readers: a new cover, an introduction to the characters at the beginning, a more readable layout with two fonts, and still the same fun flaps to lift and engage with the story!



No-No Has Nothing Left to Wear

Non-Non n'a plus rien à se mettre

By Magali Le Huche

No-No is back in a fresh new edition!

When No-No goes out, he doesn't know what to choose from his wardrobe... he's got nothing to wear. He rushes to ask his friends' advice for a new outfit. But Bio's bio-pullovers are too scratchy, Grouillette's boots-from-the-ends-of-the-Earth hurt his feet, and with Grocroc's helmet he can't see where he's going...What can he do?
Designed by Magali Le Huche, the author and illustrator who can't be ignored, No-No is an anti-hero, a platypus with inimitable charm. He goes through (existential) crises on a daily basis, surrounded by his friends who try to advise him as best they can (or not).
Humorous albums to read and reread that appeal to children and parents alike!
By the same author-illustrator: the Jean-Michel le caribou series, Non-Non's big brother, published by Actes Sud Junior, 84,000 copies sold (9 volumes), and the Paco series published by Gallimard Jeunesse, 514,000 copies sold (14 books).

Rabbit knows a spot in the mountains full of delicious blueberries. And he loves blueberries. On his way to this meadow, he meets Fox, Wolf and Bear, and all of them want to eat him!

An adventure tale with a rabbit who's afraid of nothing and has more than one trick up his sleeve to avoid being eaten alive! We must always be wary of appearances, as this album teaches us, with funny dialogues, where Lapin always manages to get away with it.

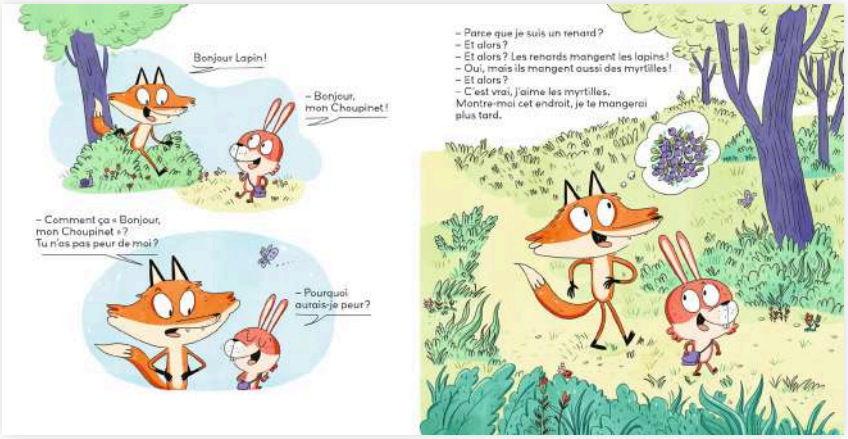
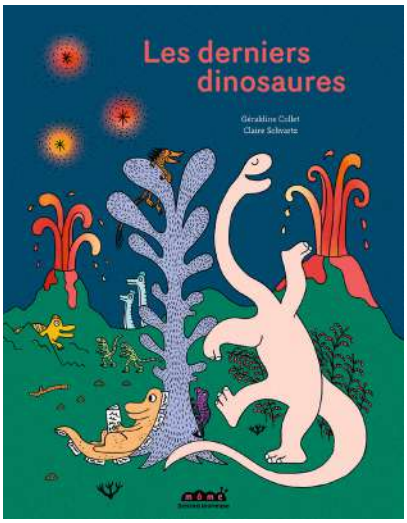
Christophe Loupy's humorous, dialogue-only text, combined with Jess Pauwels's cartoon illustrations, makes for a funny, sly book!





The Last Dinosaurs

Les derniers dinosaures

By Géraldine Collet • Illustrated by Claire Schvartz

Dinosaurs? Kids love them! And they'll have a blast discovering them tiny but very much alive in this humorous story.

Dinosaurs disappeared? Well... not all of them!
The bibliosaurs, smarter than the rest, managed to survive. Yes, really! And now that they've shrunk to a tiny size, they're arriving in the city... Have you seen them?
Kids love dinosaurs, and this whimsical, lively story will take them on an incredible adventure. Packed with rich, detail-filled illustrations, this is a book to read and reread!

Môme

At the School of Little Creatures

À l'école des petites bêtes

By Mariane Olivier • Marie-Pascale Cocagne-Nicolas • Marine Gérald • Illustrated by Maria Neradova

School—a wonderful adventure full of surprises! Seven stories to make back-to-school a joy.

Raoul the little mole is afraid of being late for school. Chab the hedgehog feels bad for spilling water on Pia's drawing. Rainette the frog lacks confidence, while Jo the rabbit is overwhelmed by the noise in the cafeteria. As for Mimi the ant, she forgot to go to the bathroom before nap time!
With warmth and tenderness, this book explores all the little challenges of school life. Following an adorable group of animals through a typical school day, it's the perfect way to help little ones feel prepared and confident about starting school.
Part of the Môme collection, this picture book puts young readers (ages 3 and up) at the heart of the story. It can be read all at once or chapter by chapter—while older children may even enjoy reading it on their own!

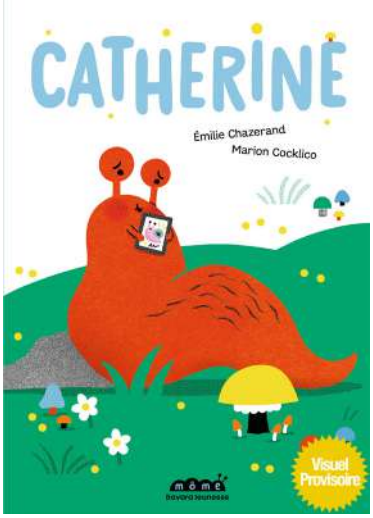
Jo Hoestlandt

Author of over a hundred books, Jo Hoestlandt writes picture books, fairy tales, novels, and poetry, always with great sensitivity—perhaps influenced by the writing workshops she leads for children. She has received numerous awards, including the Bologna Ragazzi Award in 1994 at the Bologna Children's Book Fair for La grande peur sous les étoiles. Her first series, Les neuf de la rue Barbe, has been published by Bayard Jeunesse, and her picture book Lololita, petite pensée et marguerite was warmly received in 2023.

Léa Decan

As a child, Léa Decan traveled extensively between her father's France and her mother's China. After studying music, she pursued illustration at ESA Saint-Luc in Brussels. Her work revolves around childhood, through children's literature and animation. She now leads workshops that bring together her two passions: music and books. She has published three picture books as an author-illustrator with Éditions de L'Agrume.



Catherine

Catherine

By Émilie Chazerand • Illustrated by Marion Cocklico

Catherine the slug can't help but envy her friend, the magnificent Valérie. After all, Valérie has a shell—she's a snail!

When your best friend is as stunning as Valérie, it's hard for Catherine not to feel like a speck of dirt!
Oh, by the way—Catherine is a slug, and Valérie... a snail!
No matter how hard Catherine tries to be like her, the results are far from convincing. Until Francine arrives...

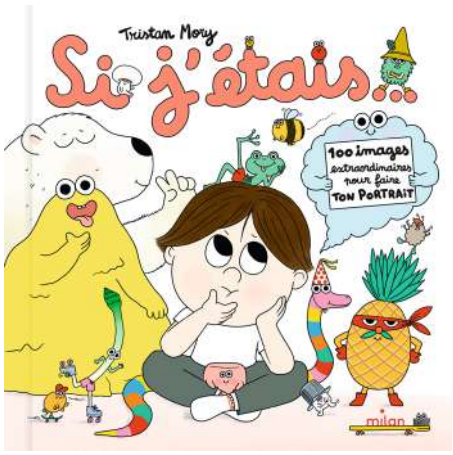
If I Were... 100 Incredible Images to Picture Yourself

Si j'étais... 100 images extraordinaires pour faire ton portrait



By Tristan Mory

Are you a redhead flea or a rolling asparagus? A hairy unicorn or a hug jar? Here's a quiz game book, by Tristan Mory, featuring 11 funny and wacky questions to create your Chinese portrait!

On the agenda: 11 playful and quirky themed questions:
Children as young as 3 years old are invited to answer by pointing to the animal, creature, activity, or object that best represents them from a selection of 10 possible answers.

• The Chinese portrait game, beloved in preschool, is reimagined in this album. 11 themed questions are asked to children, helping them create their portraits by identifying with animals, objects, creatures, and emotions.

• This joyful and playful game book stimulates the imagination and encourages the creativity of little ones. Throughout the book, the child is invited to talk about themselves and make choices—skills that help build confidence and self-esteem.

• A family-friendly game book to enjoy together. Once the child has answered all the questions, they're invited to test it on their family and friends. This shared reading moment is sure to charm both young and old.

Tristan Mory

Tristan Mory began his education in mechanical engineering before pursuing a BTS in visual communication, but his true passion was always drawing—something he's been doing since childhood—and working for children. A fan of illustration and a collector of children's books, he started his career as a graphic designer and copywriter at Milan. Gradually, he became a full-time independent illustrator and published his first book, "Patabulle – Les Pieds sur terre," in 2011, the same year his daughter was born. He followed this up with two more Patabulle books and the "Les Pops" series.

A fan of pop-up books, he enjoys exploring the mechanics of animated books, developing a style that is always evolving—popular and timeless. This can be seen in the success of his works like "Qui suis-je?", "Bravo, petits doigts!", and "Devine quoi!".

Tom, Long-Awaited

Tom tant attendu

By Stéphanie Demasse-Pottier • Illustrated by Arnaud Nebbache

Excited and eager, a little boy tells the story of the last few days before the arrival of his little brother, Tom.

Tom, he can't wait to meet him! Drawing, reading, playing... nothing seems to shorten this endless wait. As the pages turn, impatience gives way to worry: "What will he be like?" "What if he doesn't want to play with me?"... Questions rush through his mind until the big day, when our little narrator finally holds the new arrival in his arms. Now, he's a big brother!
With simplicity and poetry, Stéphanie Demasse-Pottier explores the theme of welcoming a new child into the family and the transition from being an only child to becoming an older sibling. Questions, excitement, curiosity, worry, and enthusiasm... the little narrator shares his emotions before the long-awaited meeting.
This delicate and moving album, illustrated by Arnaud Nebbache, will guide little ones who are about to become older siblings through this significant milestone in their lives.

A Friend of Mine

J'ai un ami

By Manon Fargetton • Illustrated by Lili Wood

A gentle and poetic album centered around the concept of an imaginary friend, a theme that resonates. A book of great sensitivity, with beautiful illustrations.

Manon Fargetton writes about the power of the imagination, specifically focusing on the concept of an imaginary friend. Through the course of a day at the beach, the narrator shares the strength of the bond with his friend, who accompanies him on all his adventures, both imaginary and real.
On each page, a full-page illustration that's a true painting, allowing the reader to get lost in it, thanks to the brushes of the talented Lili Wood. The images are both soft and powerful, where the beach and the sea are characters in their own right.

Émile had a very bad day. And in the evening, his mom doesn't want him to paint. That's the last straw: Émile is so angry that he decides to leave home. A picture book about anger and how to defuse it.

A story about the big outbursts of anger that can overwhelm little ones. A gentle approach to help them manage their emotions. Arguing with a friend, getting scolded by the teacher, getting hurt… there are plenty of reasons to get angry every day. These are situations that fit directly into the everyday lives of every child.

A mirror book in which both child and parent will recognize themselves: the child in Émile's situation, wanting to leave home in a fit of anger; the parent, like Émile's mom, having already faced their child's anger.

Chaque nuit, Lili, la petite souris, devient l'agent secret Souris 7.
À bord de sa Sourimobile,
elle va chercher les dents de lait des enfants,
et leur offre un petit cadeau qu'elle glisse
sous leur oreiller.

Aujourd'hui, justement, Lili a reçu une lettre :
Chère Souris 7,
J'ai perdu ma première dent de lait.
Je t'attends avec impatience. J'habite au 10, rue Moustache.
Signé : Félix

« Pas de temps à perdre ! s'écrie Lili. Vite, mon costume, un joli cadeau pour Félix... C'est parti ! »
Après une longue route, Lili arrive à destination.

How do fish breathe underwater? Why do we die?

Lou has a strange beast running around in her head, asking questions all the time and never letting her rest.
It's interesting to ask questions, but it's also tiring because you have to find the answers! All children who are curious and eager for answers will recognize themselves in Lou's relationship with her little beast.

By a very promising young author-illustrator who has already published more than 4 albums in the last three years, all of which have won critical acclaim ("Un autre rivage"; "Joséphine"; "L'ours et le Sipetit")

A universal subject treated with humour and lightness thanks to the fresh and funny images of Chloé Alméras.

The question beast is embodied and visible with a beautiful pan-tone colour and all children will dream in one!

Un meunier venait de mourir.
Il ne laissait à ses trois fils que son moulin, son âne et son chat.
Le fils aîné prit le moulin, le deuxième prit l'âne.
Le plus jeune n'eut que le chat.
Il n'arrivait pas à s'en consoler. Il se lamentait :
– Mes frères gagneront bien leur vie
en travaillant ensemble.
Mais moi, quand j'aurai mangé mon chat
et que je me serai fait un bonnet de sa peau, je n'aurai plus qu'à mourir de faim !

Le chat, qui l'écoutait, lui dit d'un air sérieux :
– Ne vous désolez pas, mon maître.
Vous n'avez qu'à me donner un sac,

A brand-new album on an unavoidable theme: school!

This original album ushers in a new creative era for Oukilés.
A large poster integrated into the book's binding allows us to push open the door to a place that is so important for children: nursery school.
The album features unpublished plates. Béatrice Veillon is accompanied by another illustrator, Alice Morentorn.

The narration follows Nestor Oukilé's day at school, from the morning welcome to the end of the day: a way of accompanying young readers on their way back to school.

Oukilé family's DNA: large, rich scenes to observe

Documentary section at the end of the album to discover other schools in the world

Séverine Vidal
She is an award-winning author of novels, comic books, picture books, and texts for the press. She also runs writing workshops for all ages.

An original picture book tackling the universal theme of shyness, and how to overcome it.

"Just as I stood up to recite my poem in front of the class, the words got stuck in my throat…" The story of a little girl who is overwhelmed by her shyness, portrayed here as an imaginary creature that appears without warning and takes over the situation. She decide the creature needs to be tamed, so that they can live together.

A must-read for helping kids overcome their shyness. A subtle and empathetic exploration of an everyday situation, that many children can relate to, in a funny and lighthearted picture book.

A book which through humour and lightness deals with everyday situations shared by many children

A reading that can give keys to children paralysed by their shyness

The beautiful illustrations highlight the text

Would you like to meet Lololita? She is a cow that folds, a cow that sorts and also a cow that prays! A little masterpiece of humour and intelligence.

Lololita, successively a philosopher, a cheeky person or a poet, informs herself and, above all, gives us her own explosive view on important subjects! How can we not be touched by this cow and the affectionate relationship she has with the two children Ruben and Suzon? Under the poetic, whimsical and philosophical pen of Jo Hoestlandt at the top of her game ("La maitresse d'école" (Les Belles Histoires) sold 36,000 copies).

A promising series which we hope will be followed by many other episodes such as "La vache qui lit" (The reading cow).

A generous collection of 3 episodes for the little ones, but which is also a first reading.

Aurélie Guillerey's beautiful illustrations bring humour and tenderness to the characters. 500,000 copies sold of her collection «Mes premiers livres sonores».

A tale about separation, explaining that a love story that ends can leave room for the child to rebuild.

In a house nestled in an imaginary forest, an adorable baby is born, so adorable that his parents name him Angel! He grows up surrounded by trees, animals and birds, surrounded by the love of his parents... But after a few years, his parents separate, making Angel deeply sad. One day, the little boy finds a wounded bird, which he nurses and feeds until it can fly on its own. The bird turns out to be a magical creature... This story explains to little ones that the end of a love story doesn't mean the end of a parent's feelings for their child. And, above all, it shows that, despite his grief, the child will find his own way to grow up and rebuild his life. A double-page spread at the end of the book deciphers the role of each character or element in the tale, to help parents understand the story and answer their children's questions more easily.

This tale explores the theme of incest and shows how children can rediscover life even after the most dramatic events.

This is the story of a little princess, whose father, the king, hurts her deeply. He thinks he has the right over everything, including his daughter's body and heart…
An initiatory tale for children, in the footsteps of "Donkey Skin", proving that princesses are stronger than the madness of kings, and that you can rediscover a love for life after experiencing the trauma of incest.

Serious subject treated by the tale to approach with the youngest children this delicate taboo thematic. At the end of the book, two pages of advice to parents to decrypt the messages of the tale. The work was designed in close collaboration with a psychologist.

Beautifull and poetic illustrations to make the children understand the text

A moving tale about healing from grief and loving life

Once upon a time, was a young girl named Capucine. She lived with her grandmother in a little village, at the foot of the mountains. Her grandmother had taken her in when she was a baby. Capucine called her "Nonna" and loved her like a mother. Nonna taught her to read and write, cut wood and cook… And above all, she taught her how to love. But one day, Nonna got sick. When she dies, Capucine is devastated. And so, begins a difficult journey, full of obstacles, moments of fear and discouragement, but also encounters that gradually help her overcome her grief.

A picture book tackling the subject of grief and how not to supress it but rather embrass and appreciate the time spent with those who are no longer with us.

A poetic tale that explores a theme that unfortunately still exists today: violence towards children.

Yoan, whose father is harsh and unloving, likes to spend time in the forest. He meets a tree there who tells him a secret: a little boy, whose father was also violent, hid drawings inside its trunk. And that little boy is… his dad!
Knowing this secret helps Yoan piece himself back together and choose a different path than anger and violence.

A moving story that explores an unfortunately common phenomenon: abusive parents were often abused as children.

A story to show children that you can start fresh after being treated badly and break the cycle of violence by understanding its origins. Abuse can be physical or psychological. 50,000 children are estimated to be victims of violence in France. This number has risen sharply since the first lockdown.
A new gentle text by Florence Dutruc-Rosset and part of our "Contes qui guérissent" (Healing Tales) collection, hailed by the press.

This is the story of Tali, a young boy whose life is turned upside down the night he is the victim of incest by his older brother, but who finds the courage to speak out.

This strong, delicate album breaks the taboo of the forbidden and the unspoken on a difficult subject that is all too often in the news, and that must be dealt with to free speech. Words are weighed up to say the unspeakable, to describe Tali's feelings, until he manages to speak and begins to rebuild his life.
Like a fairy tale, the story takes place in an undetermined time and place, so as not to stigmatize and to allow the reader to distance himself.

The author, a teacher, had her text proofread by child psychiatrist Marie-Rose Moro to ensure that she was as close as possible to the reality and feelings of the children.

Magnificent illustrations by Clémence Pollet, who uses paint to treat each image as a painting in its own right. An interpretation inspired by the characters and the surrounding nature.

An original version of the famous tale, revisited in the cold, blue hues of Russia's icy plains.

A little girl dressed in blue and nicknamed the "Little Blue Girl" has to cross the wood to bring a jar of honey to her sick grandmother. This story seems familiar to us and we think we know the rest... But this is where the rewriting takes on its full force: it draws on our knowledge to better divert the tale and surprise us! Here, the red coat has become blue, the wafer has been replaced by a balalaika and the wolf has given way to a bear who gives advice and warms the little girl during the night with his fur. And to keep them entertained, a little game awaits the readers at the end of the story, as they can choose their favourite ending from three suggestions.
And, to further surprise readers, a little game awaits them at the end of the story: choose the ending they prefer from among four suggestions, or even invent their own ending and write it in the book.

An album that won the 2015-2016 'Prix des Incorruptibles'!

How a lost mitten becomes a shelter for a whole gang of animals and causes a merry rumpus in the woods.

In the middle of winter, it's bitterly cold for the forest dwellers, even for Igor. One day, he goes out to cut wood and he loses his mitten without noticing. But the mitten finds a happy taker: Pretty Mouse, who snuggles up inside to protect herself from the freezing wind. Then tap, tap, Frisky Frog comes to join her, then crick crack, Rapid Rabbit comes in too, then Wily Wolf comes looking for a little place, then boom baboom, Buster Bear comes in too. Pretty Mouse, who has a cold, can't stop herself: ATCHOO! The mitten is blown to pieces.
So where can the animals take shelter now?

An old oak tree tells us about the magical, historical and legendary events it has witnessed in its lifetime.

Snow white takes shelter from the hunter beneath the tree, it watches the hare and the tortoise run their race. It meets a strange hermit who is later known as Saint Francis of Assisi. Through the oak tree's eyes, the author, a philosophy graduate, brings us a reflection on our contribution to the world.

Kiko

Graphic designer and illustrator for children's publishing, Nicolas Archieri is known by the pseudonym KIKO. He regularly collaborates with Astrapi for Bayard Jeunesse and has created numerous fiction and non-fiction books for Milan, Gallimard, Tourbillon, and Fleurus. He lives in Paris.

A woman, a journey, encounters, in a tale of initiation and origins.

She's a woman walking alone. Soon, whether she likes it or not, animals and humans join her along the way. All different but all equal, what can they bring to each other, and how far will they go together?
Somewhere between a tale of initiation and a legend of origins, this fable set against a Western backdrop is a wonderful invitation to travel and, above all, to accept encounters and differences.
Minimalist writing that progresses relentlessly. Sumptuous images, constructed like a beautiful mechanism. A beautiful Italian-style book by a talented author-illustrator (10,000 copies sold for Qui vit où?).
A singular album that puts human beings on the same level as the smallest of animals, reminding us that we are all dependent on each other.

Rémi Courgeon was born in Choisy-le-Roi, Val-de-Marne. Graduated of the École Estienne, he began his career in advertising and produced illustrated reports for magazines and NGOs. He is also a painter, with several exhibitions in France and abroad. Courgeon is the author and illustrator of numerous picture books. At Éditions Milan, his works include Le Mystère Ferdinand, Passion et Patience, and Ta peau contre la mienne. His book Brindille, recommended by the French Ministry of Education, earned him the Chrétien de Troyes Prize in 2013 and The Best Illustrated Children's Books Award in 2017. His album Blancs comme neige won the Gayant Lecture Prize in 2015, and Tiens-toi droite received the Facile à lire Prize in 2020. He currently lives in Les Lilas, near Paris.

Rémi Courgeon's colorful new picture book focuses on Any, a young artist, and her relationship with her grandfather, a painter in his spare time.

Any is a strong, determined heroine who succeeds in turning her passion into a profession, guided by the love and caring gaze of her grandfather, a zany and endearing character.
The story is told from the point of view of Mat, Any's passionate lover. We follow the girl's evolution through his eyes and his rhythmic words, full of admiration and humor.
Rémi Courgeon's beautifully crafted characters come to life with tenderness and humor. He tells a beautiful story of transmission and passion, featuring endearing characters.
Like Any, Rémi Courgeon drew a banana a day for a year!
The result is an exhibition mounted in Montélimar and due to tour France this year. At the same time, Rémi Courgeon will be taking part in school workshops throughout the year.

Rémi Courgeon's new character is a figure of strength and determination. A female-led Western picture book!

"The man who killed you wanted me dead. I was nothing more than a hunting trophy for him. That bullet was meant for me, but it pierced your chest. Now it's my turn to pierce his skin…"

Wearing her horse's skin as a coat, Nuée, a young sidesaddle rider, sets out to look for the murderer, Aaron Blake. Hiding in the undergrowth, listening out for footsteps, she travels the deserts in search of the man who took her friend away. During her journey, she finds a horse and nurses it back to health, rediscovering that same bond. But she will not stop until she has found Aaron Blake. Then, finally, one day… she shoots an arrow and knocks the revolver out of her opponent's hand. She lets him live, preferring horses to humans. "No horse is cruel."

From breathtaking scenery to battle scenes, the cinematographic format plays with light and shadows. Rémi Courgeon plunges the reader into Nuée's quest, in a Western genre. His new heroine, determined and solitary, is reminiscent of Brindille and Adjoa.

A poetic and modern picture book about our need to get closer to nature

Linette has a school assignment: to write about her spirit animal. But she can't think of anything to write about. Linette would rather be a tree. She identifies more with trees, especially lindens. The parallels between the girl and trees run throughout the story. Whether physically or in her way of being, Linette feels like a tree. And although she can't be the animal her teacher wants her to be, she can be the tree that brings all the student-animals in class together.

The Office of Weights and Measures

Le bureau des poids et des mesures

By Anne-Gaëlle Balpe • Illustrated by Vincent Mahé

At the Bureau of Weights and Measures, everything is measured: time, weight... But when it comes to quantifying feelings, it's much more complicated! Can we invent machines to measure everything? New format and cover, with a reduced price.

The father of our hero is Marcel Gramme, an engineer at the Bureau of Weights and Measures. His job is to ensure that a minute lasts exactly one minute and that a gram weighs precisely one gram. One day, when his son comes home from school with a "frown" and is unable to express his anger, Marcel Gramme finds all of this very imprecise. So, father and son decide to invent instruments to measure emotions: hunger, love, sadness, anger. Their machines become a huge success, but they soon cause chaos in the city...
This story, both poetic and humorous, evokes the burlesque style of Jacques Tati. The feeling is reinforced by Vincent Mahé's colorful, very 1960s illustrations.

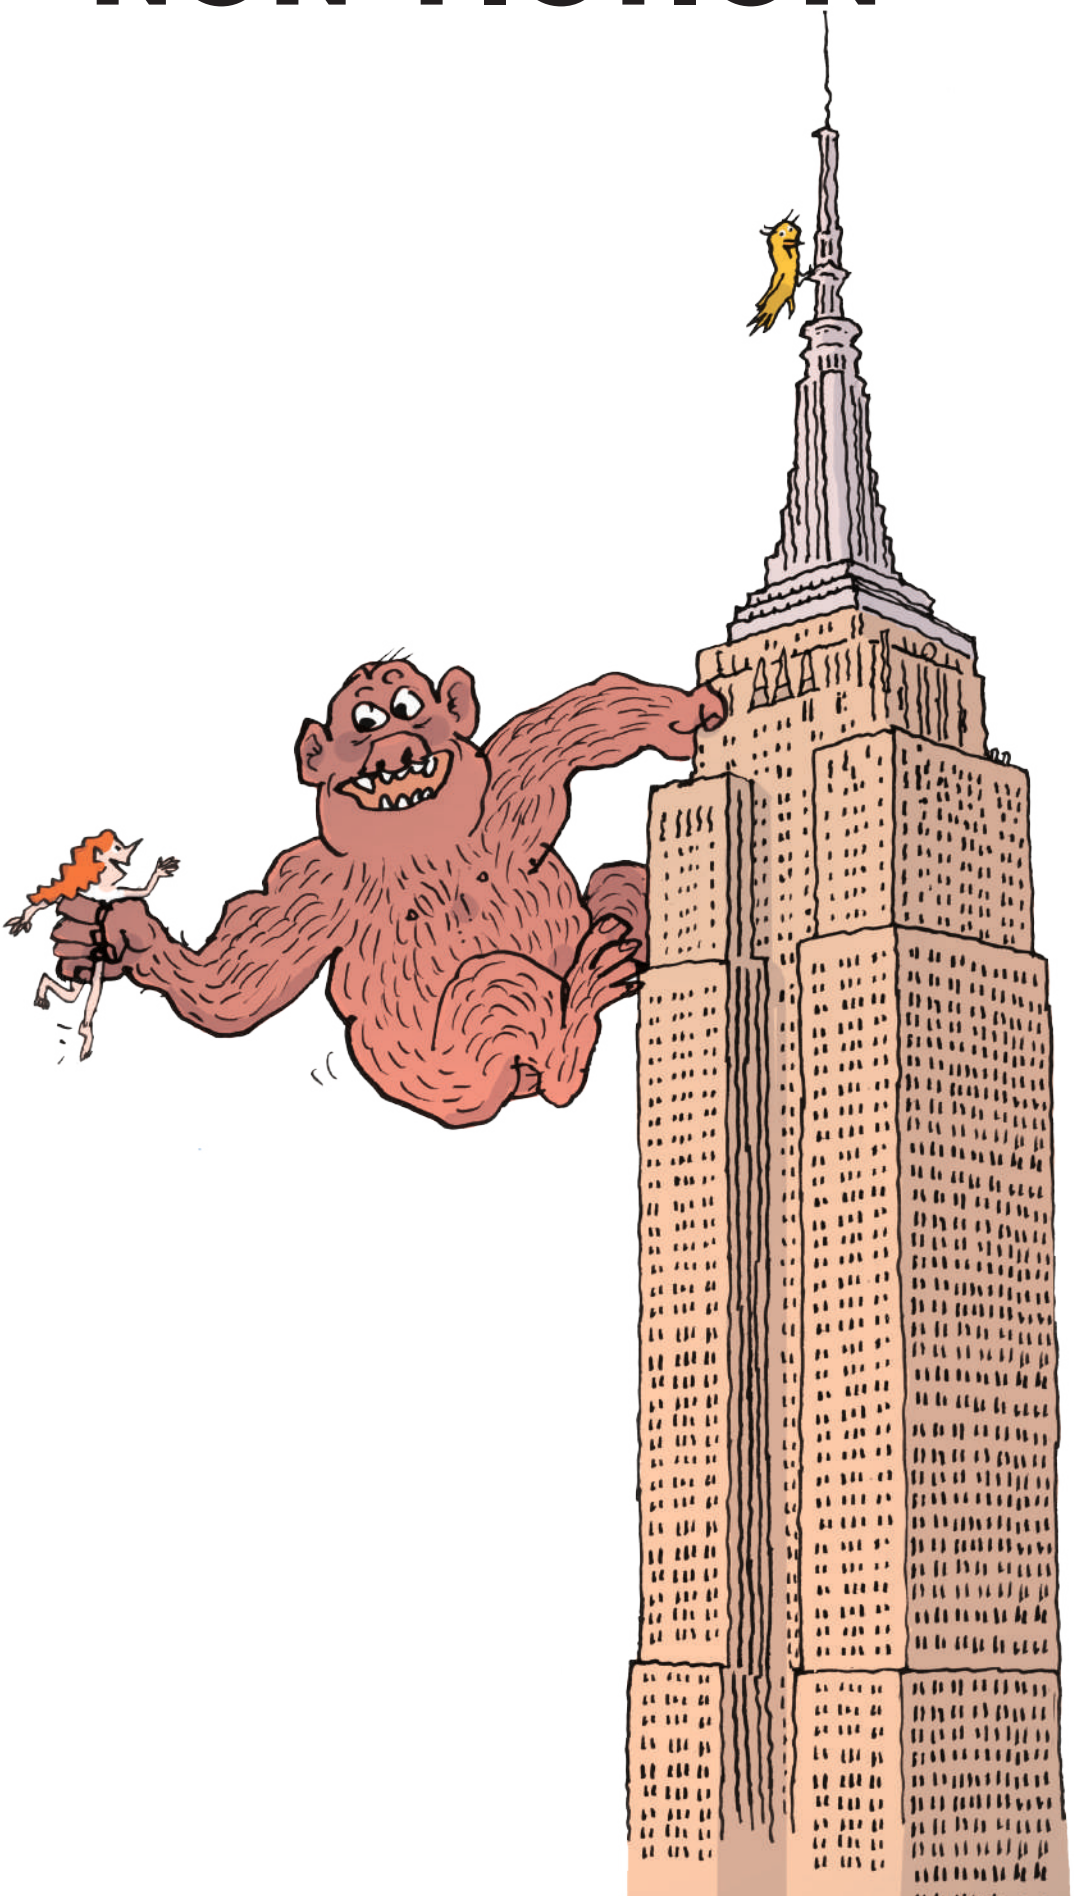
NON-FICTION



Milan, the leader in children's nonfiction for the past 10 years.

For the tenth year in a row, Milan—the children's publishing imprint of the Bayard Group—has established itself as the number one publisher of nonfiction books for children in France. This leadership position is the result of an ambitious editorial strategy and continuous diversification of formats.
Today, nearly one in every two nonfiction books sold for children aged 3 to 6 is published by Milan (source: GfK 2024).

An emblematic collection : « Mes p'tits docs »

With over 9 million copies sold in France over the past 10 years, and 7 million internationally, Milan has become the go-to reference in children's nonfiction. Its flagship collection, Mes p'tits docs, is now the leading nonfiction series for young readers. These themed board books, written by Stéphanie Ledu and beautifully illustrated, take children aged 4 and up on a journey of discovery through nonfiction stories told like narratives. My Little Docs has now expanded into magazines, audiobooks, games, webinars, and educational resources.

An essential tool for putting words on images and enriching one's vocabulary.

A picture book with 400 photos to understand everything about animals and daily environment. Behaviour, natural environment, colours, records... different categories to let young children discover, identify, as well as understand the animal kingdom and everyday life. Photos in children's non-fiction is a strong new trend, especially with the increasing fame of Montessori teaching techniques which put the accent on learning with visuals and photos.
The only two all-photo books remaining in our catalogue, both references and long-sellers from Editions Milan.

Aurélie Sarrazin

Aurélie Sarrazin is a children's book editor and author.

Nesk

Known by the pseudonym 'Nesk', Jean-Sébastien Deheeger, is initially a graphic designer in several communication agencies, he is now a freelance illustrator. His inspirations are varied, but he has a particular fondness for the retro style of the 1950s–1960s. He works in both the press and children's publishing, as well as in communication, where his fresh and colorful style shines through with humor and poetry.

Ninie

Ninie is an illustrator whose simple, fresh, and clear style is perfectly suited to toddlers. A graduate of the Beaux-Arts in Nantes, she works with many publishers, including Nathan, Magnard, Fleurus, and Play Bac. With Milan, she has illustrated Santa Claus, Are You There? (from the 'Touch-and-Feel Tales and Rhymes' series), Camping and Cats (from the 'My Little Docs' series), Easter (from the 'My Sticker Docs' series), My Nature Lift-the-Flap Book, My Dinosaurs to Touch (from the 'My Touch-and-Feel Docs' series), and has contributed to Corsica and Animal Records (from the 'My Why Years' collection).

Mes premières années pourquoi

The Meal

Le repas

By Aurélie Sarrazin • Illustrated by Ninie • Illustrated by Nesk

Mealtime is a brand-new title in the encyclopedic picture book collection My First Why Years, designed for children from 18 months. A fun and engaging way to explore food through three main themes: the table, the foods, and the kitchen!

From 18 months onward, children can explore everything related to mealtime with this title. It helps them better understand what happens around the table, the differences between foods, and how meals are prepared. With simple, short, and rhythmic texts tailored to toddlers, this picture book is ideal for reading aloud. The soft, colorful illustrations by Nesk and Ninie, along with age-appropriate factual content, make this a warm and engaging introduction to the world. Deeply attuned to young children, this book will quickly become a go-to reference to gently guide them in discovering the world around them.

• Children will discover a wealth of factual information—from different types of utensils to table manners.

• My First Why Years is an encyclopedic collection designed for toddlers, featuring factual information, simple illustrations in vignette format, and fun games.

• The collection has sold 15,000 copies.

Emergency Vehicles

Les véhicules de secours

Illustrated by Tiago Americo

Sea rescues, mountain rescues, city rescues... a pop-up book to admire emergency vehicles in action!

Six emergency vehicles come to life before the reader's eyes: the fire truck, the water bomber plane, the rescue boat, the ambulance, the Dragon helicopter, and the police car. Through this first documentary, children discover and learn new vocabulary in context: fire extinguisher, flashing light, helicopter blades, and more.

• Six emergency vehicles in 3D in an adorable small format: the fire engine, the water bomber plane, the rescue boat, the ambulance, the Dragon helicopter, and the police car.

• An interactive book designed for little hands, using the Kirigami technique, to observe the ambulance's flashing light, the water bomber plane's wings, the rescue boat's lifebuoys, and more!

Tiago Americo

Tiago, a graduate in graphic design, began his career in Brazil working in animation and received several awards for his animated short films Café La Rochelle and The Chance and the Butterfly. Since 2010, Tiago Americo has focused on children's illustration. He has published about ten titles as an author/illustrator and over 100 titles as an illustrator, working with publishers primarily in France, but also in the UK, Netherlands, the United States, and Brazil. Tiago explores figurative and decorative dimensions in the world of illustration. His drawings, often described as charming, carry a vintage touch that evokes the illustration styles of the 1950s and 60s.

Pets

Les animaux familiers

Illustrated by Raphaëlle Michaud

The 6th and final title in the Mini-Relief documentary collection for ages 2-3, showcasing familiar animals... in 3D!

This first documentary helps children discover new vocabulary in context, such as the cat's whiskers, the betta fish's fins, and the hamster's cheek pouches—offering a playful and immersive way to explore the animal world.

- Six familiar animals in 3D in an adorable small format: the cat, the dog, the hamster, the canary, the fish, and the rabbit.
- An interactive book designed for little hands, based on the art of Kirigami.

From an early age, children ask existential questions that parents struggle to answer. This book offers delicately illustrated answers.

Where was I before I was born? Where does the world come from? Why are we afraid? Why am I me? So many questions that parents often don't know how to answer!
For each question, 3 humorous answers are provided on a flap. A double-page spread offers more serious answers. With very cheerful and funny drawings by Aurélie Guillerey and Thierry Manès.
Philosophy is a very popular topic with children! Sophie Furlaud (Les P'tits philosophes: 50,000 copies sold) has adapted the text for the youngest readers.

First appearance in Pomme d'Api magazine (1.2 million readers a month).

Your body is a treasure, and if some people don't respect it, you have the right to tell a trusted adult. Talking about it means protecting yourself!

For 3-6 year-olds, this book is a simply written with cardboard guide that will speak to everyone. Because the problem of sexual abuse affects even more children than we think, Bayard has designed this guide to fight it by raising awareness among little ones and enabling them to talk about it with adults.

We are adding this title to our catalog, which already includes "La princesse sans bouche", "Le secret de Soro", and "J'aime mon corps" (3,600 copies).

Bayard jeunesse's campaign on sexual violence against children, which included the booklet "Mon corps est un trésor" (My body is a treasure), won the Prix de la Responsabilité des Medias in June 2023 and the Prix CBNews des Medias in September 2023.

Can you eat a thistle flower, the fruit of a creeper or 200 flowers fused into one large fruit? Yes, and they're common: artichokes, kiwis and pineapples!
A book to discover how everyday fruits and vegetables grow.

On a tree, a vine, in the ground... What stages does a seed go through to become a fruit? The stages of development allow us to take the time to learn about each plant and see it evolve before our very eyes.
An accessible book with an introduction explaining the stages of growth common to all plants. At the end of the book, children can have fun growing beans themselves, thanks to an illustrated step-by-step guide.
We often don't know how the most common foods on our plates grow. A visually surprising discovery and an ode to nature that invites us to observe the passage of time.

Fleur Daugey is a well-known author who spent the early part of her career working for a number of nature conservation NGOs. With Flora Descamps on the palette, their first names predestined them to work together on this beautiful document book!

Joy, anger, surprise, sadness and even empathy… Animals can feel all these things too! But they don't always express these emotions the way you would expect.

This book shows children that most animals, whether vertebrates or mollusks, have feelings! Six simple emotions (joy, sadness, anger, surprise, disgust and fear) are set in parallel with human emotions so that children can better understand how different animals express them.

More than a dozen flaps to lift up, to compare and discover more (with some surprises).
At the end of the book, children can test their knowledge and guess which emotions the animals are feeling.

An informative text written by two doctors in ethology

Accurate and engaging illustrations showcasing a wide range of emotions!

They're between 9 and 12 years old, and no longer define themselves as children, but not yet as teenagers: welcome to the world of preteens!

Based on the personal accounts of preteens, the book helps them discover their personalities, intimacy and relationships, and provides information and resources to answer their questions.
A practical guide in paperback format, 260 pages and 7 thematic chapters: me, my tastes, my body, my family, my friends, my school and the world, with testimonials, info pages, diagrams and comic strips to explain it all.
This guide for pre-teens has been entirely reviewed by a pediatrician. A subject embodied by portraits and scenes of life magnificently illustrated by Anne Pomel.
Milan already had “Vive les filles!” (16,000 copies sold in 2023) and “Nous, les garçons” (15,000 copies sold). Now it's time for “Nous, les préados”, a documentary guide to accompany all (older) children in their development.

Van Gogh, Modigliani's Blue Eyes... Who are the models in these 12 famous paintings? Thanks to a game of face/profile cutting, these women speak in the first person.

At a time when women are daring to speak for themselves, to claim their place, especially in the artistic field, this realistic fictional documentary dares to take a singular approach by giving a voice to the models of 12 famous paintings. Thanks to the profile cut-outs created by Claire Zucchelli, a visual artist, the women models we contemplate in these paintings become those who look at us... and speak to the young reader. Based on extensive documentary research, children's author and art historian Nathalie Dargent uses her talented pen to paint 12 first-person portraits of these famous yet little-known women.

Jeanne

Paris, printemps 1918

C'est la guerre. Mon frère André est au front. Il me manque. Il m'écrit souvent. Et, bien qu'il risque sa vie chaque jour, c'est pour moi qu'il s'inquiète.

Moi je n'ai pas peur. Ce que je vis, c'est mon dessin.

André a toujours aimé dessiner. Comme c'est un garçon, nos parents l'ont accepté. Moi, en secret, je l'ai imité. André m'a encouragée. Il m'a donné un carnet. J'ai pris l'habitude de tout croquer : les colères de papa, la messe du dimanche où l'on s'ennuie tant, notre maison, triste comme du fusain, ces bâtonnets de charbon que j'utilise pour mes dessins...

Un jour, on a appris qu'on déménageait à Paris ! André et moi, nous étions fous de joie, on a dansé la farandole. Puis n'a pas apprécié. Il déteste la gaieté. Surtout la mienne : selon lui, une fille doit toujours être sage comme une image.

Moi, les images, je veux les peindre.

Adieu, province ! Bonjour, Paris ! Moi qui n'ai rapporté d'un coup. Le premier matin, je me suis réveillée au cri du marchand de coco : « Coco, coco, coco frais ! Qui veut du coco ? » Ça m'a fait rire. Les amis d'André, qui sont tous des artistes, comme lui, m'ont surnommée Noix de coco. Car mon teint est blanc comme la pulpe de ce fruit et mes cheveux sont du même brun roux que sa coque.

La première fois que je les ai rencontrés, c'était à La Rotonde, un café du quartier de Montparnasse. J'avais seize ans. La seule personne à qui j'avais parler s'appelle Chana Orloff. C'est une femme extraordinaire. Chana a quitté l'Ukraine pour fuir les persécutions contre les juifs. À Paris, elle est devenue sculptrice. J'ai posé pour elle. Je suis son modèle et elle est devenue le mien. Comme elle, je veux réaliser mon rêve et être artiste.

Si mon frère a le droit d'être peintre, pourquoi pas moi ?

Depuis un an, j'étudie à l'Académie Colarossi, une école d'art où on accepte les filles. Dans certains cours, on dessine des corps d'hommes nus ! Il y a quelques mois, lors d'un bal masqué, Chana m'a présenté son ami, Amedeo Modigliani. Dès que nos regards se sont croisés, nous nous sommes enflammés. Je suis tombée amoureuse de lui, et lui de moi. Depuis, on ne se quitte plus.

Je suis devenue son modèle préféré. Et je continue à peindre. Amedeo manœuvre, il croit en moi ! Grâce à lui, j'ai même vendu mes premières toiles. Mes parents m'ont chassée de chez eux. Mon père déteste Amedeo, parce qu'il est juif, artiste, pauvre, qu'il boit, qu'il se drogue. Mais ça n'est égal ! S'il meurt, je me tue.

Solène Cornec

Solène Cornec was born in Morlaix in 1985. A fan of novels and feminism, she grew up immersed in the works of Jane Austen and Marguerite Duras, admiring strong female characters with independent spirits. From her Paris apartment, she works in marketing by day and writes by night. She has been championing feminism for years through her newsletter Bobonne and is currently working on her first novel. Surrounded by women with strong convictions and sharp humor, she is dedicated to giving women and their stories—starting with those of witches—the recognition they deserve, for both present and future generations.

Aline Bureau

After studying graphic design at the École Estienne, Aline Bureau attended the École des Arts Décoratifs in Paris to study engraving. She began her career in illustration working for the press (Libération, Elle, Le Monde) and advertising. In 1996, she shifted her focus to children's illustration and has since been published by Sarbacane, Tourbillon, Le Seuil, Gallimard, Rageot, Nathan, and La Martinière. She often compares her illustrations to daydreams or painted poems. She lives in Paris.

15 stories of women accused of witchcraft between the 14th and 18th centuries, in the Western world. 15 tales of lives shattered at a time when free spirits were feared. A rereading of the past in the light of today's struggles.

From Joan of Arc to the witches of Salem, throughout the Western world: a current theme in feminist struggles.
Through true, documented stories that do justice to these free spirits, this book rehabilitates the destiny of these women in the wake of current youth successes.
These short stories, with their varied points of view and fatal outcomes, provide food for thought on 15 portraits of women. Readers can reflect on bygone eras; they sound like warnings and challenge the way we look at others.

The compilation of volumes 1 and 2 of Philosophy For Teenagers, to familiarise yourself with philosophy questions from secondary school onwards.

Thirty-two questions from teenagers, readers of Okapi magazine, are put to the philosopher Yves Michaud. For each question asked, a debate takes place between the pupils and the philosopher. The philosopher then completes the reflection with a simple text, supported by concrete examples and a focus on famous thinkers.

Themes on life, truth, love, death... likely to interest a wide audience. For each theme, Yves Michaud has chosen one or two striking, often funny quotations written by thinkers, philosophers or writers, which can give a new impetus to thought.

This book gives teenagers a new way of thinking, to question their way of thinking, and to familiarise themselves with philosophy.

A book for teenagers to talk about intimate issues at during puberty.

Everything changes during adolescence: the body, the mind, and relationships with others. You feel different and you ask yourself a thousand questions! All these questions are the starting point of a long and exciting quest for self, which is not always easy and which sometimes leaves parents confused as to how to help their teenager.
To help them deal with these upheavals, this book deals with more than 100 themes divided into 6 sections:

- My body, my image
- My head, my character
- My family, my tribe .
- My present, my future
- My loves
- My preconceived ideas

A book co-authored by thirty teenagers, a doctor and an anthropologist.

Pourquoi le foot féminin en France n'est-il pas encore vraiment pris au sérieux ?

Lili, 21 ans

1930 : c'est l'année de la première coupe du monde masculine de foot. Les footballeuses devront, elles, attendre 1991 pour disputer leur première coupe du monde de foot. La coupe du monde mixte, c'est pour quand ?

2022 : une année qui fera date pour le soccer aux États-Unis. Après 8 ans de bataille en justice, l'organisme qui gère le football aux USA s'engage à verser un salaire à taux égal aux équipes nationales masculines et féminines.

Il faut du temps pour que les mentalités et les pratiques changent, Lili ! Bonne nouvelle : les deux ont commencé à évoluer. Aujourd'hui, en France, le football compte 193 000 féminines licenciées sur un total de 1,9 million* de licenciés (joueurs·ses, éducateurs·rices, arbitres, dirigeant·es). L'équipe de France féminine se situe au 4e rang mondial, et les clubs de l'Olympique lyonnais ou du Paris-Saint-Germain ont d'excellentes joueuses. Elles obtiennent de super résultats devant des tribunes bien remplies... Mais quels efforts, pour gagner cette reconnaissance et ces résultats !

Lorsqu'il prend sa forme moderne, vers 1850 en Angleterre, le foot – comme tous les sports à l'époque – est considéré comme « une affaire d'hommes ». Quelques équipes féminines se créent cependant en France et en Angleterre autour de 1910... Elles jouent régulièrement et ont du public. Mais en France, en 1932, le championnat de foot féminin est interdit : les femmes seraient trop gracieuses, pas assez musclées, ce sport trop violent... Dans les journaux, les débats sont vifs, mais peu importe : le foot reste l'apanage des hommes. Il faut attendre... 1970 pour que le foot féminin soit reconnu comme une pratique officielle par la Fédération française de football. Mais c'est seulement au début des années 2000 que des dirigeants de clubs et la Fédération investissent sérieusement dans la formation d'éducateurs.rices, l'installation de vestiaires pour les filles, la détection de jeunes joueuses... Car sans tout cela, un sport n'existe pas !

Les récentes retransmissions à la télévision de compétitions féminines font petit à petit entrer le football féminin dans notre patrimoine commun. Mais quel temps perdu ! Les États-Unis considèrent depuis longtemps que le « soccer » (nom du football dans ce pays) est « bon pour les filles ». Il y a aujourd'hui plus de 1,7 million de licenciées outre-Atlantique, et les matchs peuvent réunir devant la télé un public aussi nombreux que pour ceux de la NBA, la ligue professionnelle de basket aux États-Unis. Preuve que le foot n'est pas « naturellement » un sport masculin, mais que les préjugés ont la vie dure !

Je fais du foot depuis toute petite, j'adore ce sport. Une fois, j'ai regardé un match de foot féminin à la télé avec mes cousins, et je les ai entendus dire : "Le joueuse a un beau cul", "Elle rate sa relance parce qu'elle n'a pas assez de force". Je leur ai hurlé dessus ! Comment peuvent-ils être aussi bêtes pour faire tant de remarques sexistes ? Daniella, 23 ans

EST-CE UNE BONNE IDÉE DE SE FAIRE TATOUER ?
Anaëlle

Le tatouage a longtemps été mal vu, associé aux prisonniers ou aux « bad boys ». Il existe pourtant depuis la Préhistoire, signant l'appartenance à un peuple. Aujourd'hui, en France, une personne sur cinq est tatouée*, et le tatouage a pris une dimension esthétique. Il faut néanmoins se poser les bonnes questions avant de se rendre chez un tatoueur car, comme on dit, c'est pour la vie. Si tu es mineur·e, tu devras attendre ta majorité ou avoir l'autorisation écrite de tes parents. Commence par imaginer où tu le ferais, ce que tu dessinerais, et demande-toi si ça te plaira autant dans dix ou quarante ans !

Les zones du corps ne supportent pas de la même manière le vieillissement: la peau du ventre ou des bras s'abîme plus rapidement. Surtout, ne te décide pas dans la précipitation en voyant les créations d'un tatoueur ambulant sur la plage. Un tatouage consiste à introduire des encres sous ton épiderme, ce qui implique de suivre des règles d'hygiène strictes. Le tatoueur doit absolument porter des gants stériles, désinfecter ta peau, utiliser des aiguilles à usage unique, avoir des locaux nickel pour éviter tout risque de contamination. Enfin, les tatouages ne sont pas recommandés si tu souffres de problèmes de peau comme l'acné, le psoriasis ou le vitiligo. Rien ne t'empêche de

Il faut vraiment bien y réfléchir car un tatouage va rester à vie. Si un jour tu regrettes, ce sera très coûteux et compliqué de l'enlever. Samuel

C'est une manière d'affirmer son style, mais le style change, alors que le tatouage, lui, ne change pas. Il faut donc être sûre que tu le trouveras joli toute ta vie ! Jeanne

Chacun est libre de faire ce qu'il veut avec son corps, mais je pense qu'il faut être sûr de ce qu'on veut écrire ou dessiner dessus. Et peut-être commencer par un tatouage discret. Clara

A newly updated and expanded edition (+8 pages) of this guide, which features over a hundred emerging professions and offers a comprehensive overview of the sectors that are currently hiring—or will be in the near future.

The world is changing, and so are careers. The pressure to figure out what teens will do in the future starts as early as middle school. Parents worry about their children's futures, and teens are just as anxious about having to imagine a distant future so early in life. This guide offers food for thought and explains what the jobs of tomorrow will look like. It presents the key sectors with the most potential, outlines their specific characteristics, and details the skills and training already available.
For each of the 8 sectors, the guide highlights:
-Existing jobs that are evolving and will continue to hire
-Emerging roles that are gaining traction
-Entirely new professions that don't yet exist but are already being anticipated by recruiters

• With over 6,000 copies already sold, this guide is the perfect companion to the Career Ideas Guide.

A treasure trove of high quality, humorously illustrated information for readers aged 14 and up

Girl Power!

Vive les filles !

By Séverine Clochard • Illustrated by Cécile Hudrisier and Anne Guillard

The rise of Girl Power! continues, with sales steadily increasing. With this 2026 edition, the editorial update moves forward. An edition that remains closely connected to its readers—with accuracy and respect.

Because preadolescence isn't an easy time, this guide answers all the questions girls aged 8 to 13 might have: how to make friends, where to find pocket money, how to be less shy, and more. 232 pages of expert advice, tips, quizzes, and testimonials from girls of the same age. Girl Power and self-affirmation are always front and center. With essential topics for today, such as bullying and homosexuality.

• Following the success of the 2025 edition (nearly 20,000 copies sold in just six months!), this new release returns with an all-new cover by Anne Guillard—just as eye-catching as ever, featuring Pantone colors, holographic foil, and embossing.

• Humorous illustrations support texts that combine kindness and tolerance. And a constant fight against stereotypes

STOP the Tyranny of Social Media / Understanding Them Better / Managing Them Better

STOP à la tyrannie des réseaux sociaux/ Bien les comprendre/ Mieux les gérer

By Céline Cabourg • Illustrated by Dume

Understanding how social media works and the mechanisms it uses? Yes, it's possible!

A guide for 10- to 15-year-olds to explore the challenges of the attention economy and learn how to resist the pull of social media.

As communication and entertainment tools, and sources of endless information, social media platforms aren't all bad. However, the strategies used by tech companies often lead teens—at a crucial stage of identity formation—into addictive behaviors.
So how can they become aware of social media's downsides and understand the economic and cognitive mechanisms at play behind their screens?
This book provides key insights and practical strategies to help young people break free from social media obsession, through four structured chapters:

An essential guide to understanding, questioning, and regaining control over social media use.

What to Do When Everything Feels Wrong?

Comment faire quand j'ai l'impression que tout va mal ?

By Odile Amblard • Illustrated by Mikankey

Shaped by the impact of Covid, today's teenagers face a world in crisis, with growing uncertainty and fragile mental health.

This book answers their questions and offers paths to optimism to help them look toward the future with confidence.

"I have too much on my mind—how can I focus on my studies?"
"TikTok is addictive—how do I resist?"
"Who would want to have kids in a world that's falling apart?"
"Should we stop following the news to protect ourselves?"
Teenagers today face countless questions about their future and the state of the world. Increasingly affected by eco-anxiety, many struggle with mental health issues triggered by global crises, academic pressure, social media and gaming addictions, and overwhelming information overload.
This book provides guidance and essential tools to help them navigate uncertainty. Through inspiring portraits and practical solutions, it offers ways to build resilience and envision a future with hope.
More than 70 key questions are explored in two main sections:
Me, my body, and my dark thoughts
Me and a world that feels upside down
Each topic is enriched with real teen testimonies, making it easy for 12- to 16-year-olds to relate. Facts, clear definitions, and thought-provoking quotes help deepen their understanding and give them the confidence to face the challenges ahead.

J'ai vécu
I Lived Through the Concentration Camps

J'ai vécu les camps de concentration

By VERONIQUE GUILLAUD • By STEPHAN ZAUBITZER • By ANDRE MIGDAL • By SIMONE LAGRANGE • By CRISTINA SZENBERG

For the 80th anniversary of the liberation of the concentration camps, this new edition presents the powerful testimonies of three survivors of Nazi brutality.

Three lives, three teenage survivors of the concentration camps—and for one, the persecutions of the Warsaw Ghetto. Each has bravely shared their story of survival, recounting their suffering and resilience with the same intensity, dignity, and sense of peace.
Simone Lagrange: She was 13 years old when she was arrested in Lyon with her parents. The man who tortured her to extract information about her hidden siblings was Klaus Barbie. Deported to Auschwitz, she was the only one in her family to return.
Christine Szenberg: In 1940, she and her family were confined to the Warsaw Ghetto. Just before its destruction, she escaped with her mother and younger sister, hiding in the sewers for three months to survive.
André Migdal: At 16, he was arrested by the French police for his involvement in the Resistance. Hiding his Jewish identity, he was interned in several French camps before being deported in May 1944 to Neuengamme, Germany.

Did you know that bees show the way to a watering hole by dancing in the hive? That wild dogs vote by sneezing before hunting on the savannah? Like humans, other animals communicate.

How do animals communicate in the dark, underwater, at a distance, in an environment disturbed by humans? This richly illustrated book examines animal communication in a variety of natural environments.
Animals communicate through their senses. They can even spread false information to obtain food. Contrary to what you might think, fellow creatures of different species exchange information to help each other!
Numerous examples relate to animals that children come across in their daily lives: pets, garden insects, pigeons... An invitation to observe, guided by two child characters who accompany the reader on his or her journey.

The ethologist duo Agatha Liévin-Bazin and Charlotte Duranton deliver an in-depth, accessible text on this theme, unique on the children's market. A magnificent handsome book sublimated by the illustrations of Nicolas Galkowski.

Six posters that unfold to discover instruments by major families and orchestras.

A visual journey into the incredible world of musical instruments! Each family of instruments (strings, percussion, winds, etc.) is showcased across a double-page spread filled with fascinating tidbits about their history, sound power, creators, and more. Then, it's expanded into a magnificent fold-out section that displays the instruments in full detail.
One part is dedicated to instruments from around the world, and another to unusual instruments: very recent ones (electronic…) or very ancient ones (bone or crystal flutes…), those that work with water (glass harmonica) or wind (aeolian harp), or even carved out of an armadillo shell (charango)… The orchestra is also highlighted with a fold-out featuring three major types of orchestras: symphonic, chamber, and baroque.
The author, Nicolas Laffite, a musicologist, gained recognition through his shows on France Musique, creating podcasts for the Paris Opera, and co-organizing festivals such as Tous en Sons in Marseille.

Cindy Chapelle graduated from the French School of Sophrology (EFS) in Montpellier. She has led workshops on body awareness, stress management, self-confidence, and life values. As an author of books on personal development and nature, she sees well-being and balance as essential from an early age, especially in response to anxiety crises, the fast pace of society, and the urgent need for ecological transition.

Listening to one's body, breathing well, understanding emotions, stimulating the senses, learning to relax, describing feelings, building self-confidence, communicating calmly, connecting with nature, and finding one's path—through Copain du bien-être, she offers young readers the tools to better understand themselves, embrace their emotions, and grow with serenity.

A "Copain" book to address the emerging and highly relevant trend among 8+ children regarding personal development, written by a sophrologist and author of numerous adult titles.

A tool and keys for an ode to simplicity, to strengthen self-confidence, connect with nature, and understand emotions. Faced with anxiety crises and the ever-faster pace of our society, focusing on well-being is becoming increasingly essential for the future. Never before has a single book gathered so many personal development activities for young readers.
This book offers a wide selection of activities that, chapter by chapter, help the reader get to know themselves, build confidence, and manage stress. It includes various activities such as learning origami, creating a personal well-being rule, making a zen room fragrance, designing an identity card, awakening the senses, practicing self-massage, reading aloud, and keeping a gratitude journal.

Smart Digital

Numérique pas bête

By Romain Gallissot • By Baptiste Massa • Illustrated by Pascal Lemaitre

In the best-selling collection Pas bêtes, experts answer real children's questions to better understand the digital world in which they are growing up.

A great book that provides an enlightened outlook on the world of today and tomorrow by deciphering the web, its history, and its infinite possibilities, as well as listing responsible online behavior and rules.
What did the first computer look like? Why are parents always saying, "no more screens!"? Could a computer bug bring the world to a halt? Does Google have all the answers? How did my grandparents communicate without cell phones? Will robots be able to tidy my bedroom one day? Who invented emojis? Are digital things bad for the environment?
Through all these questions, the authors help kids understand the world they live in and invite them to think about their own use of digital objects.
From computer pioneers to digital art, making video games to the question of free Internet access, this book is full of anecdotes and information to discover and fully understand everything digital.

Smart Architecture: From Huts to Giant Towers

L'architecture pas bête. Des cabanes aux tours géantes

By Guillaume Goubert • Illustrated by Pascal LEMAITRE

What is the tallest tower? Can a building be a failure?

Explore the world of architecture through children's questions!

Can a building be any shape? Is it true that some houses are made of wool? How do towers withstand earthquakes?
The questions explored in this book were asked by 9 and 10 year-old students, and a specialist in architecture answers them in simple, accessible language.
The story begins with caves—because to talk about architecture, we must first ask when it all started. How did early humans settle down and begin constructing homes? And how did they eventually start embellishing them? Readers will discover how castles emerged, why we started building multi-story houses, and how some structures—like the Eiffel Tower or the Pompidou Center—were initially met with public outrage.
The Fascination of Engineering
Children are often captivated by technical aspects:

A book for everyone, designed to broaden our perspective on the built environment—whether ancient or modern, low-rise or towering skyscrapers.

Questions pas bêtes
Big Philosophical Questions for 7 to 11-year-olds

Pense pas bête T.1 - Les grandes questions philo des 7/11 ans

By Anne-Sophie Chilard, Gwénaëlle Boulet and Oscar Brenifier • Illustrated by Pascal Lemaitre

A new edition of the best-selling title in the Pas bête collection: philosophical questions for ages 7 to 107!

Is it important to be beautiful? How can we tell what's true or false? Who decides what's right or wrong? Is it bad to make mistakes? What's beautiful and what's not? Why do we feel afraid?
These are just some of the many questions children ask — and that adults sometimes struggle to answer.
This book, based on the "Pense pas bête" column from Astrapi magazine, invites children to think for themselves, form their own opinions, and stay open to discussion.
It explores a wide range of topics — life, death, friendship, money, fear, beauty, justice, laughter, aging, jealousy, good and evil — each presented over four pages in a simple, accessible way. Richly illustrated, the book makes complex ideas easier to grasp.
Each section speaks directly to children's everyday experiences, offering clear answers while showing that for every big question, there are many possible answers.

Smart Notebook, Gender Equality

Cahier pas bête, l'égalité filles garçons

By Stéphanie Duval • By Sandra Laboucarie • Illustrated by Pascal LEMAITRE

Equality between girls and boys is a value to embrace every day. This activity book helps reinforce it through fun and engaging exercises.

A topic more relevant than ever: building an understanding of gender equality from childhood is essential for creating a fairer society, free from discrimination against girls.
Fun activities to understand why equality matters. Through quizzes, tests, and coloring activities, this book encourages children to reflect on how they envision their future as women or men, while challenging gender stereotypes. Yes, boys have the right to cry and take dance lessons without being called "weak."
An engaging and thought-provoking activity book that helps children question stereotypes and embrace equality in their daily lives.

The Nature Notebooks collection is one of the essential nature books from Milan editions.

Nature Notebook' is divided into two sub-series: Identification and Activities.
The first teaches children how to recognize animals, the second suggests things to make and ways to have fun in nature. Easy to slip into your pocket, they are designed to be used outdoors.

The contents have not aged, and their new layout brings them up to date. Less static, more colorful and more cheerful, it makes books more attractive. Their "raw" paper cover, enriched with flaps and a cutout, gives them character and originality.

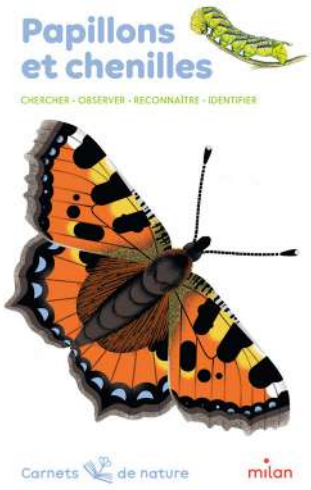
Carnets de nature



Butterflies and Caterpillars

Papillons et chenilles

By Léon Rogez • Illustrated by Anne Eydoux • Illustrated by Lucie Brunellière

A practical and fun guide to discovering the diversity of butterflies, their characteristics, and how to observe them with ease.

This booklet presents 55 butterfly species that are among the easiest to encounter in their caterpillar stage. Some live in gardens or on plants growing along paths, while others, at certain times, leave their forests, fields, or meadows to wander in search of a place to transform into a chrysalis. They can often be seen easily on roads and trails. With this small guide, our young budding naturalists will be able to identify them. First, they will learn how to use the booklet, where each butterfly is presented alongside its caterpillar. Then, in the table of contents, they will find species that live in gardens, on vegetables, on nettles, on shrubs, in fields, in meadows, in hedgerows, in orchards, in woods, and along rivers. At the end of the book, an index will help them navigate the guide more effectively.

Rocks and Minerals

Roches et minéraux

By Francis Duranthon • Illustrated by Catherine Fichaux • Illustrated by Lucie Brunellière

Limestone, clay, slate... or a precious stone? This handy guide features 83 types of rocks and minerals to help identify them easily. No more forgotten pebbles in your pockets—it's the perfect way to start a great collection!

The 67 minerals and 16 rocks featured in this guide are among the most common or most famous. They are organized either by color (minerals) or by family (rocks). For each rock or mineral, several identification clues are provided (luster, density, hardness). By checking all the listed characteristics, young observers will be able to identify them.

A pocket-sized, budget-friendly guide—perfect to slip into a backpack or a pocket!

• A clear and airy layout with concise texts that get straight to the point, complemented by numerous illustrations in a naturalistic style.

• To create a true collection effect, all the covers are illustrated by Lucie Brunellière, whose refined graphic style and elegant color palette bring a cohesive and artistic touch to the series.

• A refreshed look for a flagship collection from Éditions Milan, with 1.4 million copies sold (11 titles already published). This reissue brings back a classic that previously sold 40,000 copies—a strong return to the catalogue.

Live My Life as a Hedgehog

Vis ma vie de hérisson

By Charlotte Duranton • Illustrated by Nikol

A new immersive documentary collection to follow the life of an animal or a plant step by step!

A new immersive documentary that follows step by step the life of this small semi-nocturnal mammal. When a hedgehog is born, its skin is filled with water, cushioning its first spines to prevent injuring its mother during birth. After an hour, its body becomes covered in white spines, and within a day and a half, small brown spines start to grow. Follow a European hedgehog as she explores her habitat. From diet and communication to reproduction, baby hedgehogs, and interactions within the ecosystem, there's so much to learn about this countryside and garden hero. Charlotte Duranton, an ethologist, offers a first-person narrative that brings readers closer to the animal, allowing them to experience its daily adventures. Readers will be captivated by a constantly evolving layout: stunning photographic pages, diagrams, comic strips, and large, realistic double-page illustrations by Nikol. Everything is designed to observe the hedgehog from every angle.

Live My Life as an Oak Tree

Vis ma vie de chêne

By Agatha Liévin-Bazin • Illustrated by Didier Balicevic

The new collection of nature monographs in photos: immersive, bringing readers as close as possible to the life of an animal or plant!

The oak tree presents its life in six chapters with paired themes, accompanied by a friendly bat mascot that lives in its branches. Its environment: the forest, how to recognize the oak by its leaves and acorns, and which animals make it their home. The layout offers various types of double-page spreads to enhance the reading experience: a large-format photo spread for total immersion, a multi-photo spread to highlight details, an educational comic strip to explain and tell a story, a large captioned illustration for deeper understanding, and finally, an observation and activity spread that allows children to engage and explore on their own.

A new way of presenting the history of the world: 30 mind maps based on emblematic figures from Lucy to Ramses II to ecologist Wangari Maathaï.

Mind maps: an innovative graphic concept used in schools. They give children an overview of a character and their era at a glance. This is the only children's collection to use this principle.

A discovery of those who have left their mark on human history: Lucy the australopithecine, the Roman emperor Augustus, Eleanor of Aquitaine, Genghis Khan, Queen Victoria, Lenin, Martin Luther King...

The concept, acclaimed by the press, is in line with current reading habits among 8/12 year-olds: information is conveyed through images and key words.

Ancient History in Mind Maps

L'Antiquité en cartes mentales

Isabelle Autissier

Isabelle Autissier is a sailor, writer, and president of WWF (World Wide Fund for Nature).

Back from a scientific expedition in Iceland, Benjamin Flouw takes us on a journey to discover glaciers with his new documentary album.

Zoé is on a school trip to Iceland with her class. During an excursion, she loses sight of her group for a few hours – or maybe just a few minutes? In any case, it's enough time to meet an old Icelandic shepherd, find an elk bone – or is it a megaceros bone? – and, above all, to learn a lot about glaciers, their formation, their role in the climate, and their impact on the landscape... A documentary that reads like a story, brought to life by the beautiful images of Benjamin Flouw. An authentic documentary report about glaciers and Iceland, this adventure places the protection of the planet at the heart of our concerns.

The Day

La journée

By Camille Masson • Illustrated by Yi-Hsuan Wu

A 'My Very First Docs' to explore each part of a toddler's day — from moments and places to activities and emotions.

My Very First Docs": the perfect "My Little Docs" for toddlers!
With kindness and clarity, this collection supports young children as they grow, helping them explore the world around them and connect daily experiences with their environment — that's the mission of My Very First Docs! Each 24-page book follows a toddler's day through 8 double-page spreads, closely mirroring their routine.Thanks to a gentle narrative thread, children learn while having fun — discovering the vocabulary of the day and enriching their language: morning, noon, afternoon, evening, night, eat, get dressed, play, rest, go out, unwind, wash, listen to a lullaby...

• The 'My Very First Docs' collection: over 60,000 copies sold in 2024 (GfK).

• Through key daily moments and places (meals, activities, home, park...), toddlers become familiar not only with their environment but also with their emotions and feelings: I did it, I'm having fun, I'm hungry, I'm tired, I'm happy...

The playground

Le parc

By Marie Greco • Illustrated by Mélisande Luthringer

Going to the park is always a real breath of fresh air for children—a joyful moment full of fun and discovery. This My Very First Docs title introduces toddlers aged 2–4 to one of their very first outing destinations.

My Very First Docs: the perfect My Little Docs for toddlers! This collection gently supports growing children, helping them discover the world around them and connect their daily lives to their environment.
Going to the park is a moment of pure fun and exploration. In this story, Noé spends an afternoon at the park with his parents—an outing full of benefits for toddlers: it supports their health, motor skills, cognitive development, connection to nature, and socialization.
Like Noé, children are eager to run, play, and enjoy everything the park has to offer. They also learn to follow simple rules—for example, waiting their turn for the slide if someone is coming down. Outdoor play is a toddler's version of sport: not structured exercise, but fun activities that improve balance and coordination.
The outdoors is also a rich sensory playground, where children experience different colors, textures, smells, sounds, temperatures, and atmospheres.
This nonfiction book uses a narrative thread to introduce park-related vocabulary in a fun and engaging way: path, tree, playground, swing, slide, merry-go-round, bench, fountain, ride, park keeper...

A new collection of illustrated documentaries that presents the highlights of the emotional life of children from 4 years.

A narrative thread to promote proximity, identification and complicity, short texts, soft and funny illustrations make this collection the ideal way to talk about all the subjects that touch the child closely. The abyss by fiction allows a more immediate and concrete understanding, while the documentary part gives the words that adults often miss in answering questions about children.

Girls, Boys, All Equal!

Filles, garçons, tous égaux !

By Stéphanie Redoulès • Illustrated by Stéphanie Rubini

From an early age, girls are still excluded from football fields, and boys with long hair are singled out. A "P'tit Pourquoi" to break down stereotypes!

Milo and Inès are neighbors. They are the same age, in the same class, and love playing together. Not much sets them apart... except their gender. Yet, Inès wonders why being a girl sometimes prevents or discourages her from doing certain things, like learning boxing or cutting her hair short. Meanwhile, Milo wants to buy a pair of purple shorts, but purple is "for girls." From toys to clothes, preferences to personality traits, gender equality is an issue that shapes children's daily lives from an early age. This P'tit Pourquoi helps identify and challenge stereotypes, empowering kids to break free from clichés and become the open-minded citizens of tomorrow.

Stéphanie Redoulès

Her passion for writing and books led her to children's publishing, specializing in non-fiction after training at Asfored. As an editor at Fleurus, she thrived before going independent, supporting publishers while embracing curiosity, pedagogy, and creativity. Writing naturally followed, inspired by children's questions and the joy of sharing knowledge.

Stéphanie Rubini

Stéphanie Rubini is a French graphic designer and illustrator who collaborates with the monthly magazine Causette. After studying graphic design at the École des Beaux-Arts in Besançon, she initially worked as a layout artist in publishing before returning to her first passion—drawing and illustration—when she became a freelancer in 2009. Since then, she has illustrated picture books, novels, non-fiction, and practical guides, working with publishers such as Gulf Stream Éditeur, Belin Jeunesse, Le Pommier, Hatier, Solar, Hachette, and Marabout.

The Manga

Le manga

By Annabelle Fati • Illustrated by Anne Pomel

Since 2019, the manga market has experienced spectacular growth, reaching 48 million sales, which is nearly 1 book sold out of every 7! A "Mes docs art" to discover the art of manga and revisit a true phenomenon.

A documentary to learn everything about manga: How does manga work? Who are the most famous mangakas? Which heroes are most loved by children? What do "Shônen," "shôjo," and "seinen" mean? What are they? And that reads like a story; key moments from a literary universe – Japanese comics – illustrated by works that explore the origins, the authors, the heroes, and the codes of a very popular genre!
With a lovable mascot (a drawn child, either a girl or a boy) that provides additional information or highlights a specific point (like a little expert on the artist or movement being discussed).

Giuseppe Arcimboldo

Giuseppe Arcimboldo

By Maïlys Celeux-Lanval • Illustrated by Stéphanie Rubini

Everyone knows those paintings of faces made up of fruits and vegetables, though not everyone knows the name of the artist... Giuseppe Arcimboldo is a painter with a playful style that is still studied in kindergarten today!

Giuseppe Arcimboldo was a clever painter from Milan in the 1500s. He became famous for making fun portraits using fruits, vegetables, flowers, and books! Though he didn't invent this style, it became so popular that people now call it "arcimboldesque."He worked for emperors in Vienna, painting both serious portraits and silly ones made of objects. Arcimboldo also loved designing costumes, sets, and even scientific drawings. His art was loved by royal families and still inspires artists today.This book shows 13 of his coolest works, like Summer, Water, The Librarian, Vertumnus, and Flora.

• A book to discover who Arcimboldo was, what he liked to paint (stained glass, the imperial family, composite heads...) or create (costumes, sets, machines...), how he worked (tapestry designs, painting), and why he remained famous.

• Still relevant today: The Four Seasons are becoming the new stars of the Galerie du Temps at the Louvre-Lens for two years, before returning to the Louvre in Paris.

A documentary told like a story, featuring key moments from Arcimboldo's life and 13 iconic works. A mascot adds extra insights, like a true expert

The impressionists

Les impressionnistes

By Bénédicte Le Loarer • Illustrated by Clément Devaux

"The Impressionists" gets a fresh new look with a brand-new cover! Over 10,000 copies sold.

Who were the Impressionists? What did they like to paint? How did they paint? Why do we still talk about them today? With this book, very young children discover a group of painters who, for the first time, came out of their studios to paint in the open air. They were audacious, holding eight exhibitions to show their new approach to colour and light through immediate sensitivity. A revolution in the world of art! A dozen paintings, among the movement's most famous, are explained here.

• In simple language, children discover the story of Impressionism, its greatest figures (Monet, Renoir, Degas...), and take their first steps into art history by exploring 13 iconic works.

• A mascot (a drawn child, boy or girl) provides extra information or clarifies specific points—like a little expert on the artist or movement being discussed.

The Earthworm

Le ver de terre

By Stéphanie Ledu • Illustrated by Candela Ferrández

Milan, the leader in the nature segment of the children's market, releases "Mes docs nature." A collection of animal and plant monographs designed to get children outdoors and reconnect them with nature. It includes an activity and a poster!

Unappealing to some, fascinating to others: the earthworm is worth getting to know. By eating soil, it digs tunnels that enrich the ground and aerate the earth, helping plants grow well. It even breathes through its skin!
Drawings and photos allow the animal to be seen in its natural habitat, without humans. A mascot guides the readers and marvels alongside them. Extras: an activity that respects the animal, an identity card like a Pokémon card, and a poster.
In recent years, 4 out of 10 children never played outside. This collection encourages children to go outdoors and helps them reconnect with nature and discover the living world.

Birth

La naissance

By Audrey Guiller • Illustrated by Valentine de Lussy

This documentary delves into the mysterious topic of birth, helping children understand how babies are born in a simple and educational way.

This book explains in simple terms the development of the fetus, childbirth, and the first few days after birth.
A book that stands out for its modern approach to the subject. For example, pregnancy can be a choice (contraception) or a challenge (assisted reproductive technology - ART).
Explaining birth to children also involves talking to them about genetics, their identity, their place within a sibling group, and the roles of a godmother and godfather.

At the Theater

Au théâtre

By Astrid Dumontet • Illustrated by Vérane Cottin

Amazing — a book that unfolds! Through fun games, children discover a place of leisure for all ages: the theater. They learn how it works, who works there, and what happens during a performance.

"Mes docs à jouer" is an original collection of documentary game-books for children aged 5 and up (13 titles already published).
The concept: a book that unfolds as you read, revealing a large, richly detailed image. Each section of the image is paired with a short documentary text and one or more visual games: shadow matching, riddles, "seek and find," spot the differences...
Solutions are grouped together at the end, printed upside down in one place.
A perfect book to discover a place before visiting it for the first time.
They'll get a glimpse of behind the scenes while also seeing what happens on stage. They'll understand that many people work together to make the show happen — not just the actors. A fun and informative introduction to the world of live performance and the people who bring it to life!

The Rain

La pluie

By Stéphanie Ledu • Illustrated by Benjamin Strickler

A book that explains what rain is, how it forms, its role in the water cycle, and its benefits and dangers.

With climate change, rain—and the severe floods it can cause—is a growing topic of concern.

Once, people didn't understand why rain fell. Today, it's no longer a mystery: we know rain is part of the water cycle. This 32-page documentary explains how rain forms, why some clouds produce rain and others don't, and introduces the different types of clouds. Children will discover terms like drizzle, petrichor, tropical humid climate, and rain gauge. They'll learn which animals enjoy the rain and which avoid it, why rain is essential to life, and how it can also be dangerous—especially today, as our planet's balance is increasingly disrupted. Part of the Mes p'tits docs series, which tells documentaries like stories and helps children explore the world around them. This title also introduces the work of weather presenters and meteorologists—experts who study the weather—and the tools they use: weather satellites orbiting 36,000 km above Earth, daily weather balloons studying cloud formation, and sensors on airplanes collecting data during flights.

From the first banners used to show clan belonging to today's national flags, organizational flags, sports competition flags, and community flags — this book takes children on a world tour of existing flags!

"Flags" — a treasure trove of information to learn theme-related vocabulary and explore the world of flags, their symbolism, and meaning.
An interactive and playful documentary that encourages children's participation and independence, while helping them learn through fun sticker activities. Children learn by placing stickers in the correct spots.
Perfect for all young flag enthusiasts — whether geographic or otherwise.
As they turn the pages, children will discover the history of the first flags, from the Middle Ages to today. They'll learn why flags were created, how they bring people together, what they represent, and when they are waved or raised. They'll also find out that beyond national and regional flags, there are flags for sailors, international organizations, sports competitions, unions, and communities...

• The child learns to discover flags and their various uses by placing around forty stickers in the correct locations. The instructions provide vocabulary related to the theme: hoist, coat of arms, banner, standard, signals, vexillology...

• The first documentary collection in the 'stickers' segment, with over 120,000 copies sold in 2024.

The Conquest of the Moon

La conquête de la Lune

By Stéphanie Ledu • Illustrated by Giovanni Simoncelli

"Little Docs+" — a deeper dive after "My Little Docs"! This documentary takes us to the Moon to explore its history and human exploration, just before astronauts set foot on it again with the upcoming Artemis missions.

The Moon has fascinated humans for centuries. Galileo revealed its surface; Cold War powers raced to explore it. In 1969, Apollo 11 landed on the Moon. Women like Katherine Johnson enabled the mission. Today, Artemis plans a return. The book also explores different forms of memory and remembrance.

• The race to the Moon, told to explain how the Soviets and Americans moved from observing our natural satellite to exploring it through various missions.

• Thanks to this book, readers discover what can be found on the Moon, what it's made of, what was brought back, the difference between a cosmonaut, astronaut, and spationaut… and that it's the perfect viewpoint to admire Earth!

• The little extra: portraits of the men who walked on the Moon, along with the emblem of their mission!

"Little Docs+" — a deeper dive after "My Little Docs"! After exploring the senses, teeth, and birth, this new documentary tackles another fascinating topic about the human body: how memory works.

This "Little Docs+" title begins by explaining the role of memory: in building personal identity, and in helping a species survive (by remembering danger, sources of food, etc.). It then explores five types of memory and simply shows which areas of the brain are activated. Readers learn how memories are formed, how emotions and sleep affect memorization, and the role memory plays in learning. But memory can also trick us: the brain can't record everything, memories can change, and diseases like Alzheimer's can affect them. In animals too, memory plays a key role (as in migratory species). Finally, memory isn't just about the individual or the present moment—it can be passed down through generations (epigenetic memory) and carry the identity and history of a people.

• The little extra: common misconceptions about memory.

• Over 26,000 copies of the collection sold since March 2023.

Pascale Hédelin

After working in film and television as an assistant director and screenwriter, Pascale Hédelin turned to children's writing—likely because she never truly left the world of childhood. For over twenty years, she has written stories and nonfiction for children of all ages, for both publishing and the press. At Éditions Milan, she is the author of the Grands Livres animés and many titles in the Mes années pourquoi, Mes p'tites questions, and Mes docus à toucher collections. She received the Roberval Prize for Déjoue les pièges de la science (Gulf Stream) and the Sorcières Prize for Cité Babel (Éditions des Éléphants).

Mes années pourquoi - Imagerie Ancient Egypt

L'Égypte ancienne

By Pascale Hédelin • Illustrated by Collectif d'illustrateurs

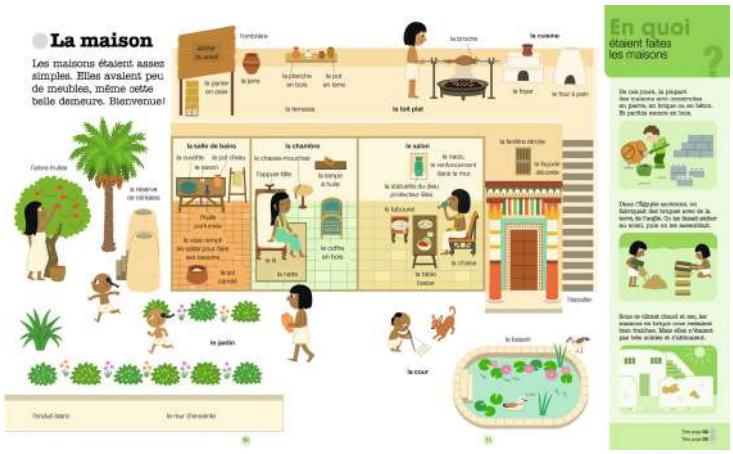
Pyramids, pharaohs... Ancient Egypt is a fascinating subject! This 96-page illustrated book invites children to discover and marvel at this ancient civilization.

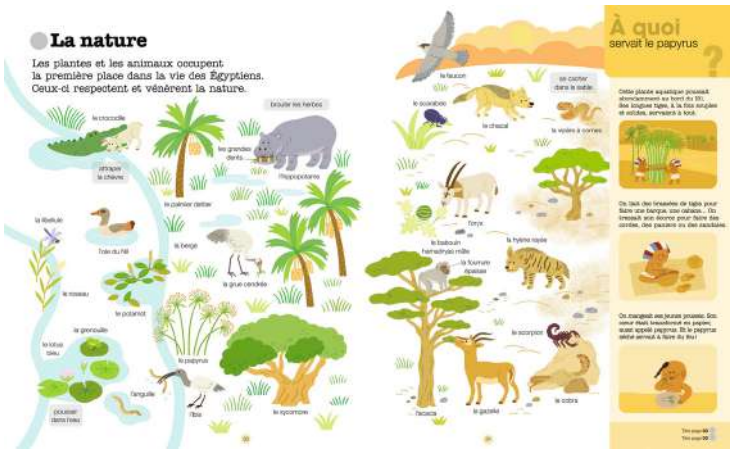
"Mes années pourquoi – Ancient Egypt" is divided into four parts.
The first chapter explores daily life: homes, villages, food, clothing, family, children, school, and leisure. The second chapter presents the country: its geography, the Nile River, wild animals, economic resources, agriculture, fishing, hunting, crafts, and trade. The third chapter focuses on society: priests, scribes, slaves, war, arts, sciences, and religion. The fourth chapter centers on the pharaoh: his childhood, rise to power, the queen, the palace, pyramid construction, death, tomb, pyramid secrets, and a brief timeline.

• In the same age range, Pyramids and Pharaohs has sold over 15,000 copies in the Mes p'tits docs animés collection since 2019.

• A reference imagery collection that puts children at the heart of the experience through a visual-first approach. It satisfies their curiosity by answering questions in simple, accessible language within dedicated info panels.

• A must-have collection with over 1.3 million copies sold.





Alzheimer's disease

La maladie d'Alzheimer

By Camille Laurans • Illustrated by Marygribouille

Alzheimer's affects nearly 1 million people in France — 8% of those over 65. With 225,000 new cases each year, this book helps children understand what a loved one, often a grandparent, may be going through.

Having a loved one with Alzheimer's is scary.
This book helps begin the conversation about a disease that affects more and more aging people. Through the story of a little boy's grandmother and how it impacts the whole family, children will learn to understand this progressive illness that affects memory and brain function. They'll also discover the support systems in place to slow its progression and help caregivers.
A book that also reminds us that many researchers are working hard to find the medicine that, one day, will defeat Alzheimer's.

• A "Mes p'tits pourquoi" title that clearly explains the disease, its effects, and the support systems designed to slow it down — while also addressing, without taboo, the many emotions a child may feel when a loved one is affected.

• With expert input from the AlzJunior association and a child psychologist.

Scheherazade and the Sultan

Shéhérazade et le sultan

By Astrid Dumontet • Illustrated by Eva Roussel

In the "My Little Stories" collection, discover the tale that frames all the stories of "One Thousand and One Nights": the story of Scheherazade, who fights to stay alive against a vengeful sultan.

The Sultan of India, betrayed by his wife, decides to marry a new woman every night and have her executed at dawn. But the clever Scheherazade, the vizier's daughter, tells the sultan wonderful tales for a thousand and one nights to escape death... In this collection, factual information is conveyed through storytelling. On each double-page spread, readers subtly learn concepts and vocabulary. What is a sultan, a vizier, or even a djinn? General knowledge related to the main character is also shared: the concept of a framed narrative, oral storytelling, and more. Each complex term is explained either through context or directly in the text. The book includes a family tree of Scheherazade to help understand the relationships between characters, an opening page to recall the tale, and a concluding page that connects the story to children's everyday lives.

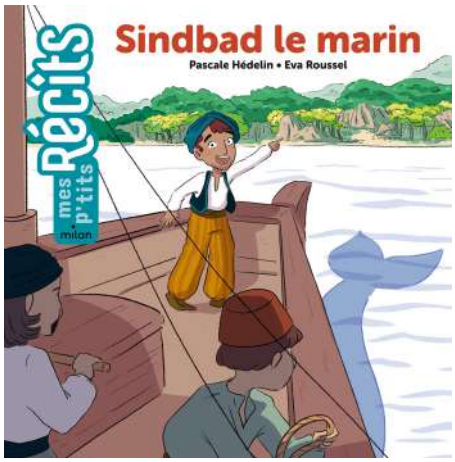
Astrid Dumontet

Astrid Dumontet chose a career in publishing. After studying editing in Toulouse, she learned how to "make books" at Éditions Milan. Since 2012, she has been writing documentaries, delighted to create content for young readers. In the "My Little Questions" collection, she has written titles such as: "Dreams," "Love and Friendship," "Kings and Queens," "Airplanes," "Racism," "Living Together," and "Emotions."

Eva Roussel

Eva Roussel is an illustrator and comic book author At age 5, all she wanted was to draw! In high school, she chose visual arts, then studied art history, illustration, and graphic design at university in Paris. After four years working in corporate graphic design, Eva became a freelance illustrator. Since then, she has mainly worked for children's publishing and the press (Milan, Talents Hauts, Gulf Stream...). She notably published a children's comic book: Les Enfants du Bayou, with Jungle editions.



Sindbad the Sailor

Sindbad le marin

By Pascale Hédelin • Illustrated by Eva Roussel

A tale from One Thousand and One Nights, the world-famous collection of Middle Eastern legends. Children discover the seven adventures of Sindbad, a clever and courageous hero!

A merchant from Baghdad named Sindbad grows bored and sets sail for the Indies. Across seven incredible voyages, he lands on a whale-shaped island, escapes giant snakes in a diamond-filled valley, and carries a strange old man on his shoulders... In this collection, nonfiction content is woven into the storytelling. Each spread introduces vocabulary and concepts—like "raft," "cyclops," or "stopover"—in context. Children also gain cultural insights, such as the location of Baghdad or trade routes in the Indian Ocean. With character introductions, a story-opening page, and a final spread linking the tale to children's everyday lives.

• At the beginning of the book, an illustration introduces the story's characters, helping readers understand their relationships and easing entry into the narrative.

Pascale Hédelin

After working in film and television as an assistant director and screenwriter, Pascale Hédelin turned to children's writing—likely because she never truly left the world of childhood. For over twenty years, she has written stories and nonfiction for children of all ages, for both publishing and the press. At Éditions Milan, she is the author of the Grands Livres animés and many titles in the Mes années pourquoi, Mes p'tites questions, and Mes docus à toucher collections. She received the Roberval Prize for Déjoue les pièges de la science (Gulf Stream) and the Sorcières Prize for Cité Babel (Éditions des Éléphants).

Dracula

Dracula

By Astrid Dumontet • Illustrated by Loïc Méhée

A "Mes p'tits récits" to shiver with the story of the most famous vampire in literature – Dracula!

Jonathan, a young English notary, travels to Transylvania. His client, Count Dracula, wants to buy a mansion in London. But Jonathan soon discovers that his host is a vampire thirsty for human blood… Jonathan escapes, and with his friends, he fights to stop Dracula from infecting all of London!
In this collection, factual information is conveyed through storytelling. On each double-page spread, readers subtly learn concepts and vocabulary. Where is Transylvania? What is a mansion, and what are the undead?… The information also includes general culture related to the hero: it explains what the Samhain festival is, which inspired Halloween, what superstitions surround vampires, and their connection to bats…
Each complex term is explained either through context or within the body of the text. The book includes a character map to understand relationships, an opening page to set the scene, and a concluding page that ties the story back to children's everyday lives.

• Our collection stands out thanks to fully illustrated pages and its focus on younger children. There's currently no offering for kids as young as 4–5 years old (while "Quelle histoire" starts at age 6).

My First World Tour

Mon premier tour du monde

By Didier Mounié • Illustrated by Collectif d'illustrateurs

A new edition of the best-selling title from the "My First Atlas" collection, whose success has never waned: 20,000 copies sold since its release in 2002. This atlas has become a reference book for its theme and target age group.

From polar bears to the Great Barrier Reef, from Inuits to Papuans, from the Eiffel Tower to the Grand Canyon... a first world tour full of information and color, to travel and dream from an early age. A first geographical introduction to Africa, Europe, Asia, North America, South America, Oceania, Antarctica, and the major oceans. Simplified political and physical maps for better readability, while staying true to reality. Large illustrations offer journeys across the continents, giving children a richer and more global view. Each continent is presented through one or two pages of vignettes, two pages of maps, and one or two double-page spreads of travel scenes.

• Rich and detailed illustrations by Laurence Jammes, Olivia Cosneau, Sandrine Thommen, and Alexandre Verhille, presented as vignettes or large maps.

• Over 33,000 copies of the "My First Atlas" collection sold.

Mon Premier Exploradoc

My Compote comes from a Flower

Ma compote vient d'une fleur

By Karine Harel • Illustrated by Didier Balicevic

A new edition of this documentary to learn all about one of children's favorite desserts!

To understand the world, children observe, ask questions, and build on the answers they receive. Today, a child is more likely to eat applesauce than to witness the seasonal cycle of an apple tree. That's why Karine Harel chose to trace these questions back—from the finished product (applesauce) to its origin (apple blossoms).

• Mon Premier Exploradoc, a Successful Collection: 200,000 copies sold, including over 50,000 internationally! "My Compote Comes from a Flower": 6,100 copies sold.

• Field reports as if you were there: photographs, little illustrated characters asking the right questions, and concise, well-documented texts for an easier read.

• How are applesauce and apple juice made? What is a fruit? What does an orchard look like? What happens at a fruit processing plant? A documentary to understand everything about how applesauce is made!

What are human rights?

C'est quoi, les droits humains ?

By Isabelle Pouyllau • Illustrated by various illustrators

What is solidarity? What is the Universal Declaration of Human Rights? What's the point of debating?... A book to remind and clarify the main principles of human rights and their key players.

What is solidarity? What is the Universal Declaration of Human Rights? What is the abolition of slavery? What are laws for? Does the UN have a leader? What is a dictator? What's the point of debating? ... Comic strip answers to all these questions, and many more, to help decode the functioning of the set of rules that organize the lives of human beings together. A book to remind and clarify the key principles of human rights and their main actors.
These educational videos answer a child's daily question related to current events in a minute and a half. The explanatory commentary is always humorous, with light and playful drawings. The aim is to help children develop their own reasoning and provide them with the keys that will allow them to form their own opinion. Each comic develops a main idea, with a few secondary ideas aimed solely at supporting, illuminating, and contextualizing the main idea.

What is Terrorism?

C'est quoi, le terrorisme ?

By Sophie Dussaussois • Illustrated by various illustrators

What is a terrorist? What is an attack? What is Daesh? ... A book to explain a complex phenomenon that affects many countries. New updated edition.

What is terrorism? What is a terrorist? What is an attack? What is Daesh? Why do teenagers go to fight in jihad? ... Answers in comics to these questions and many others, attempting to understand the complex phenomenon of terrorism. 34 comics directly adapted from the videos of the magazine "1jour1actu." These educational videos answer a child's question related to current events every day, in one minute and thirty seconds. The commentary is always humorous, and the drawing is light and playful. The goal is to help children develop their own reasoning and give them the tools to form their own opinion. Each comic presents a main idea along with secondary ideas that simply support, explain, and contextualize the main concept.

An interactive picture book full of surprises, to explore an inspiring, creative, happy and ideal "exhibition" of Hervé Tullet's work.

Hervé Tullet invites readers to touch and LOOK. Explore this artist book like a real exhibition.
The windows and superimpositions bring the works of art to life, play with our eyes and invite us to create an explosion of colors, shapes and inspiration.

After The Ideal Exhibition (the boxset) which allows mini artists to create and engage with art on their own, The Ideal Workshop is an opportunity to see and play with Herve's own take on it. These are a perfect set that compliment each other!

Simple lines and dots become a real festival for the eyes.

Your Mission, Detective! In Space

The latest release of the "À toi de jouer, détective!" game-book series focuses on a highly popular theme: Space! Where? When? How? Who's guilty? Turn the wheels on the cover to answer the questions and solve the case.

There's panic in the space colony! Strange events have been happening lately. The inhabitants are being played tricks on, objects are disappearing, houses are being sabotaged... It's up to the child to lead the investigation and help Albert, the mayor of the colony, untangle all these matters. Concentration, deduction, and reflection are the best allies of this album, which blends the pleasure of reading and playing. The child is invited to step into the shoes of a detective to solve 15 funny and wacky cases written by Pascal Prévot.
Based on the clues available, the child develops strategies and identifies causal links to unmask the culprit and piece together the events. This first introduction to the detective game, with its original design and hilarious illustrations by Camille Roy, will captivate both young and old from age 6 and up. Parents and children will enjoy sharing a reading moment while having fun.

15 colorful characters in a "Who is the culprit?" mystery with a summer camp vibe! A book combining the joy of reading and detective games, perfect for the summer.

At summer camp, the reader conducts the investigation and eliminates suspects to figure out who the culprit is. Who moved the beds in the dormitory? Who sabotaged the horseback riding activity? Who forgot to do the dishes? Anyone could be guilty!

Through 15 humorous illustrated stories, the reader must identify the culprits among many characters. With these investigations, the child practices reading carefully and learns to sort through information. These funny and lively stories are not just an excuse for a game but also provide a real reading pleasure.

Qui est le coupable en voyage ? - La maxi-enquête

By Pascal Prévot • Illustrated by Aurore Damant

New cover for "Who's the Culprit?" – Maxi Edition.

A world tour in 4 stops, with 32 investigations and 4 character cards to slide into the cover.

5,400 copies sold since the first edition in late 20

Who makes a Greek statue speak? Who is hiding in a Thai temple? Who knocked out the Easter Island guide? Who sealed an Egyptian tomb? On this journey, everything goes wrong: disappearances, thefts, tasteless jokes... Through humorously illustrated stories, the reader must identify the culprits among many colorful characters. Thanks to these investigations, children practice reading carefully and learn to sort through information. These funny and lively stories are not just a pretext for a game—they also offer real reading pleasure. This specially crafted collection is presented here in a maxi version: each stop of the traveling family introduces new encounters and therefore new suspects. Four cards, to be slipped under the cover, allow the suspects to be changed and exonerated behind sliding panels.

Includes a clever system of sliding panels that lets players clear suspects as the investigations progress

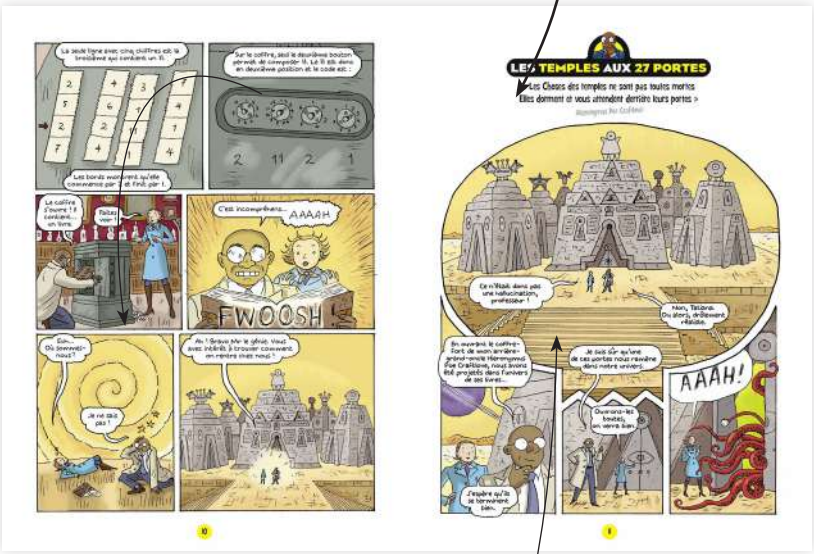
A puzzle book that will delight 8 to 12-year-olds who love solving mysteries and investigations.

A brand-new Dr Enigmus investigation.

Intrigued by Enigmus' great uncle's will, the inspector and his loyal sidekick, Tatiana, find themselves plunged into eleven wonderful – or terrifying! – worlds. And the only way out of these strange and confusing worlds is to solve the enigmas.

An original concept: the reader has to solve the enigmas while following the story.

The reader is actively helping Dr Enigmus with his investigation.



A riddle to solve throughout the book!

Robin Lagofun

A 27-year-old illustrator and concept artist from Bordeaux, he has been working independently since September 2019 after completing a master's degree at Lim'Art Bordeaux. Specializing in board games and video games, he has explored a variety of graphic styles, ranging from cartoonish to more realistic, collaborating with different publishers and developers. Meurtre au musée is his first book!

Chloé Blondel

Chloé ventured into game creation through escape rooms, opening one of the first rooms in France in 2013. Gradually, she began designing custom games for cities and museums, and since 2020, she has been publishing a range of investigative board games titled Les enquêtes sous scellés.

A murder has taken place at the museum! It's up to the reader to solve the case. An immersive investigation based on the principles of murder parties and crime solving games.

A thriller to play and solve, offering a real gaming experience. Readers are in control of their own journey, moving from one page to the next as they investigate. It's up to them to be perceptive and intuitive!
An enriched book where form serves content: numerous facsimiles are present on every page. Readers can flip through files, open pigeonholes and a computer... The book's production contributes to the playful experience.
An immersive atmosphere with visual narration: the highly realistic illustrations set the scene of the investigation like real photographs, and the facsimiles reproduce the style of police documents.
A story, close to investigation games, murder parties and role-playing games, adapted for young players aged 10 and over, by the creator of the "Sous scellés" boxes and a video game illustrator. A title that fits in with the true-crime trend.
