Tristan Mory

Tristan Mory was born in 1981 in Clichy, France. After studying mechanical engineering and visual communication, he pursued his true passion: drawing and creating for children.

He began his career as a graphic designer and editor for several Milan Presse magazines before becoming a full-time illustrator and author. Since publishing his first book in 2011, he has created numerous successful children's titles, including Who Am I?, Bravo, Little Fingers!, and Guess What?.

A lover of pop-up books and innovative book design, Tristan Mory is known for his simple, expressive style and his talent for bringing characters to life through playful, interactive formats.

The Animorigolos - The Cat

Les animorigolos - Le chat

By Tristan Mory

Following The Frog, the latest addition to Tristan Mory's beloved Animorigolos series is The Cat.

The Cat is the latest title in Tristan Mory's beloved Animorigolos series. With its square format and soft-toy-inspired features, including large pointed ears, playful paws, a tail, and a tag to grasp, this charming book is designed to become a toddler's favorite companion.

In this gentle bedtime story, a little cat gathers its tiny friends, from ants and ladybugs to flowers and mushrooms, before an evening star wishes them all goodnight. Using simple shapes and expressive details, Tristan Mory brings the cat to life with warmth, humor, and remarkable creativity.

A cuddly book-shaped comfort toy, perfect for sharing at bedtime.

- A charming fabric book by Tristan Mory, featuring a square format and delightful 3D details, including large pointed ears, playful paws, a tail, and a graspable tag inspired by babies' favorite comfort toys.

Who's Hiding Beneath the Leaves?

Qui se cache sous les feuilles ?

Illustrated by Mélisande Luthringer

Under the sea, in the jungle, or by the pond... who's hiding beneath the soft flaps? This large fabric activity book invites little ones to discover animals through a fun game of peekaboo.

In this large fabric book, baby sets off to meet animals in the pond, the jungle, and under the sea, playing a fun game of hide-and-seek along the way!

Whether lying on their tummy or sitting up, babies can explore independently, touching, looking, listening, and developing their sensory awareness and motor skills page after page.

- Following the success of Voyages, which sold over 9,000 copies, this new large-format fabric activity book invites babies to discover the world of animals through interactive play.
- Soft textures to stroke, crinkly materials to explore, large flaps to lift, and a mirror for self-discovery make this oversized fabric book the perfect companion for stimulating and engaging babies' senses.
- A fabric book that invites little ones into Mélisande Luthringer's poetic, gentle, and elegant world, where bright colors unfold across each page to capture and stimulate baby's attention.

My Kitten

Jeu de chat

By Xavier Deneux

A poetic, interactive stroll with a little white kitten. A sturdy board book with flaps and a raised, tactile thread to follow with your fingertips.

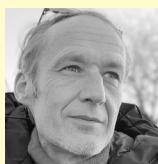

A little white cat on a black background finds a red thread. Where does it go—up or down? The kitten follows it, plays with it, wonders, and ventures further... before resting under its mother's watchful eye.

With five flaps to lift, readers can join the game. Embossing and spot varnish let you feel the thread with your fingertips and interact with the cat. A poetic, interactive journey full of surprises by Xavier Deneux, a renowned early childhood illustrator whose Black & White series is a long-time bestseller.

Cry, My Little Heart

Pleure, mon petit cœur

By Louison Nielman • Illustrated by Nathalie Ragondet

A poetic and moving picture book celebrating the universal love of parents for their children.

In this beautiful picture book by Louison Nielman, with soft and sensitive illustrations by Nathalie Ragondet, two young parents speak to their baby, sharing with emotion and humility all the everyday moments when they learned to comfort them.

- With accuracy and emotion, Louison Nielman explores the different cries of a baby, and the comfort and love they find with their parents. A touching story told in two voices, in which all young parents will recognize themselves.
- A story that reassures parents who feel helpless in the face of their baby's cries. Hunger, the need for cuddles, fatigue... what do they mean? With delicacy, the text shows that parents themselves are the answer to their baby's distress.
- Soft, delicate illustrations by Nathalie Ragondet beautifully capture the needs of newborns and their parents' overflowing love.

Édouard Manceau

Édouard Manceau was born in 1969 in Vendée.

At just sixteen, he began working regularly as an activity leader, enriching himself through contact with children – with whom he felt perfectly at ease. At twenty-two, he entered the School of Fine Arts in Angers, graduating in visual communication – and he returned there in 2006 as a member of the end-of-year jury!

He received the 2011 Prix des Incorruptibles (preschool category) for Tout pour ma pomme and the 2012 prize for Si tous les éléphants s'appelaient Bertrand.... He was also awarded the 2015 Prix Sorcières (toddler category) for Le Petit Curieux.

How Do You Do?

Comment ça va ?

By Édouard Manceau

A board book to help little ones understand facial expressions and emotions

How do you do?

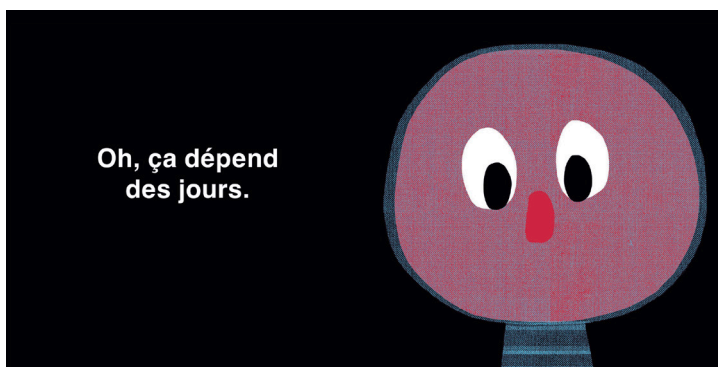

Sometimes I'm OK, sometimes I'm not. Sometimes I feel sad or angry, and get upset and cry. Then, I feel better.

What about you?

We all feel emotions, happy and sad ones that can be seen on our faces. Can you recognize them?

It's normal to feel upset, cry or get angry. That's life. What matters is making yourself feel better and opening up to others to say, "what about you?"

A black back-ground with simple, round faces

Sejung Kim

Kim Sejung is a Korean children's author and illustrator who has collaborated with several publishers, including Lito, Milan, Hachette, Larousse, and Chanok. She is also a member of Tadaaam Studio, a creative multimedia and animation studio.

Mes Premières Histoires Racontées The Mitten

Mes premières histoires racontées - La moufle

Illustrated by Sejung Kim

A brand-new sound book series where each page turn automatically brings the story to life, creating a magical reading experience for toddlers.

On a freezing winter night, a little mouse discovers a mitten abandoned in the snow and curls up inside to keep warm. Soon a rabbit, a fox, and even a bear join her. Despite the limited space, everyone is welcomed, until the mitten finally bursts!

This heartwarming tale of friendship and sharing is reimagined as an interactive sound book. With every turn of the page, the story begins automatically, transforming reading into a magical, hands-free experience for little ones.

- Designed to make reading effortless, the story starts automatically with every page turn, no buttons to press, no sound chips to find.
- The audio storytelling guides children through the story step by step, supporting comprehension, anticipation, and the joy of listening.
- Sejung Kim's illustrations are full of warmth and tenderness, featuring simple shapes and soft watercolor-style artwork that create a gentle, dreamlike world for young readers.

The Fall

L'automne

Illustrated by Camille Tisserand

This is a new series of listen-and-learn books! It expands the range of sound picture books with more focused themes, a smaller, more affordable format, 30 sounds, and a sound-based seek-and-find game.

- On each double-page spread, children can listen to four individual sounds as well as a larger sound-rich scene that provides context and brings the setting to life. The final double-page spread features a sound-based seek-and-find activity, inviting children to listen to different sounds and locate the corresponding elements in the illustration.

- Rain, puddles, the deer, walnuts, the kite... discover and listen to 24 autumn sounds, grouped into six categories.

- A sturdy format designed for little hands, featuring a sound module with an impressive total listening time of 4 minutes. Soft-touch buttons are easy for young children to press, and the long-lasting batteries ensure extended enjoyment.

The Winter Rhyme

La comptine de l'hiver

By France Quatromme • Illustrated by Mylène Rigaudie

Clack, clack! Tchicka, tchicka! Thump, thump! Achoo!
Let's listen to the song of winter in the cherry tree.

Toum, toum, goes the falling snow. Tap tap, tchicka tchicka, clack clack, go our friends Ninon, Nibbles, and Coco, who are freezing cold and trying their best to warm up. But with all that noise, they'd better be careful not to wake the Yeti!

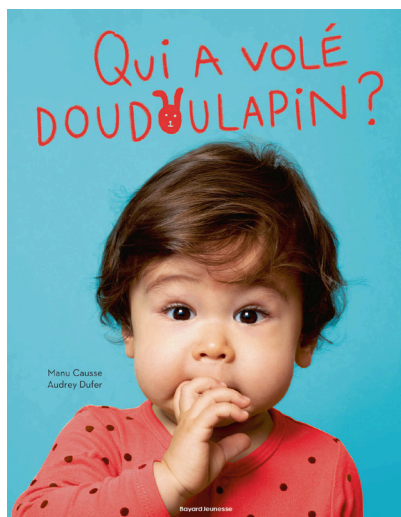

- A charming, nursery rhyme-like story with a lively rhythm, filled with playful onomatopoeias that are delightful to hear and great fun to say aloud for the person reading the story.
- Written by storyteller France Quatromme and illustrated by Mylène Rigaudie (The Story Factory, with over 15,000 copies sold), this is the final book in a delightful four-volume series, with each title celebrating one of the four seasons.
- A sturdy board book for children aged 2 and up, designed to be read from top to bottom, playfully highlighting the vertical layout of the cherry tree and the characters who each live on a different level.

Hooray for Little Athletes!

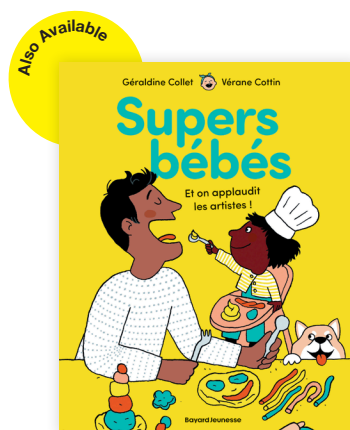

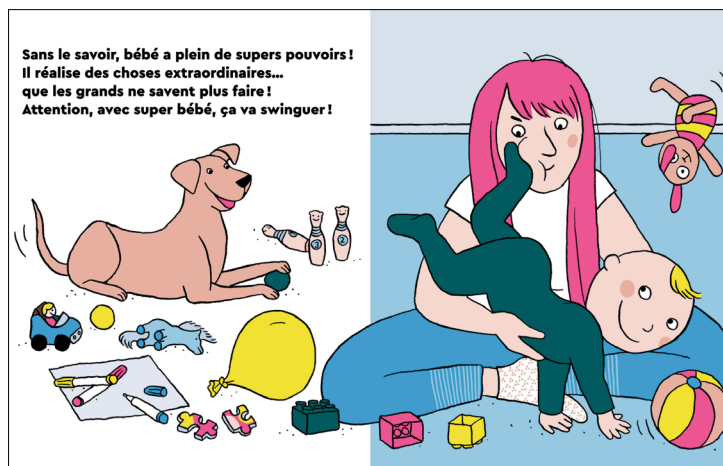

Bravo les p'tits sportifs !

By Géraldine Collet • Illustrated by Vérane Cottin

Babies have superpowers. Didn't you know? And what if one of their talents was making their parents exhausted?

Super Baby can do extraordinary things adults have long forgotten: turn walls into modern works of art like a true artist, play the tam-tam on a saucepan from morning till night, grab their toes in acrobatic... all while remaining their parents' little darlings!

- A new series that feels true to life and speaks to both parents and children. Baby is celebrated, while mom and dad are gently teased—making for a reading experience that's as tender as it is heartwarming.
- A highly relevant collection for parents—sometimes exhausted, often overwhelmed... but always happy!
- Géraldine Collet's sharp, modern, and tender style, paired with Vérane Cottin's adorable yet stylized artwork—enhanced with a touch of Pantone color.

The Smallest Bear in the World

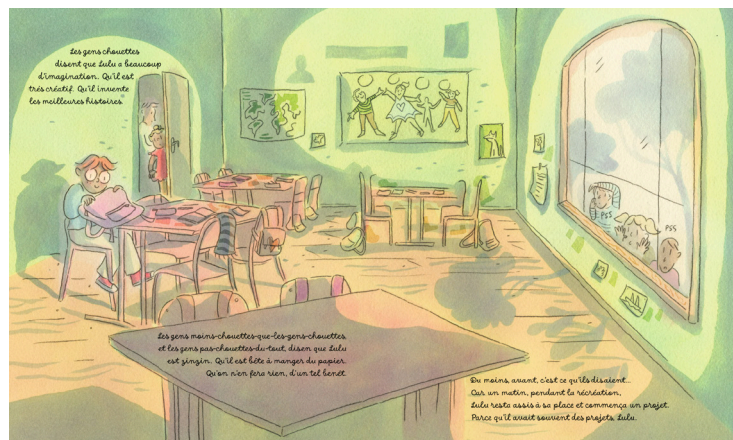

Le plus petit ours du monde

By Émilie Chazerand • Illustrated by Nina Six

Lulu has a wonderful imagination. Despite being teased by his classmates, he patiently spends each recess building a home for "the smallest bear in the world."

Lulu knows that happiness is about more than eating and sleeping; it's about dreaming. And when the smallest bear in the world finally appears, he discovers that even the wildest dreams can come true.

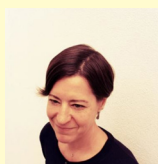

- Émilie Chazerand paints a touching and finely observed portrait of Lulu, a lovable little boy with an extraordinary imagination.
- A gentle and reassuring picture book about self-acceptance and believing in your dreams. Readers will eagerly follow Lulu's project as it grows one recess at a time, leading to a heartwarming and magical final surprise.
- A heartwarming story to share with children who struggle with self-confidence, as well as with teachers looking for creative classroom project ideas.
- Featuring Nina Six's soft and gentle illustrations, full of warmth, charm, and imagination, perfectly complementing Lulu's touching story.

Deborah Pinto

Deborah Pinto divides her time between work for the press—illustrating a feature every month in Pomme d'Api—and illustrating numerous joyful, colorful children's books. She enjoys drawing small anthropomorphic animals and painting expansive gouache landscapes. She is also a yoga teacher, which is why illustrating this book was such a pleasure for her.

Searching for the Night

À la recherche de la nuit

By Maylis Daufresne • Illustrated by Deborah Pinto

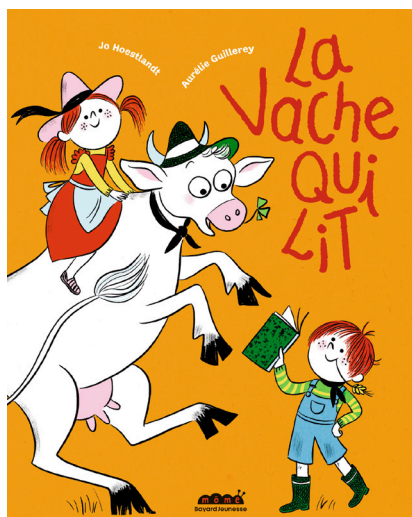

"But where has the night gone?" Brune wonders. And you—do you know? What if we set off to discover the night together?

"Night is here," whispers Dad. But Brune looks around... and cannot see it. The streetlights shine, the puddles glimmer, yet the night retreats—timid and fragile. So it is decided: tonight, Dad and Brune will set out in search of it! To a place where night can truly be night, without being held back. A place where Brune, too, can learn to be herself.

- A poetic and magical story that will resonate with young children fascinated by natural phenomena yet somewhat disconnected from them. A picture book that invites readers to open their eyes wide and discover all the beauty of the night.

- An original and finely crafted text by Maylis Daufresne (4,000 copies sold for the picture book Les Chemins de traverse), paired with beautiful gouache illustrations by Deborah Pinto.

The Reading Cow

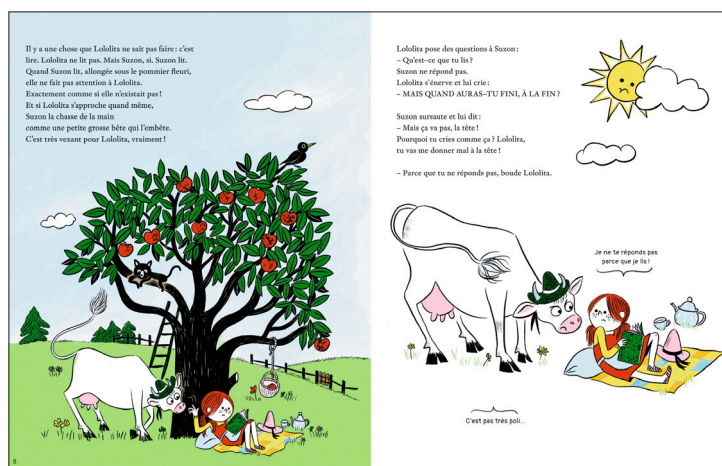

La vache qui lit

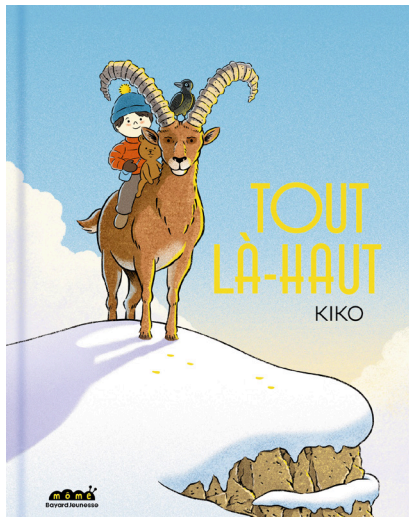

By Jo Hoestlandt • Illustrated by Aurélie Guillerey

The magic of reading, explained to children through three funny and delightfully zany stories.

Do cows that read exist? What about cows that ski—or even cows that yell? One thing is certain: Lololita the cow is ready to do anything for her little friends, Suzon and Ruben. However, the human world can sometimes remain a mystery for this little cow from the Jura region. To understand her friends and their curious world, Lololita will have to embark on adventures that are as amusing as they are unusual.

- The magic of reading, explained to children in a whimsical and tender world that nonetheless connects with all young readers through their questions and everyday experiences.
- Three stories of friendship featuring Lololita and her friends Ruben and Suzon, finely crafted by the talented Jo Hoestlandt and beautifully brought to life through Aurélie Guillerey's illustrations.

Up Above

Tout là-haut

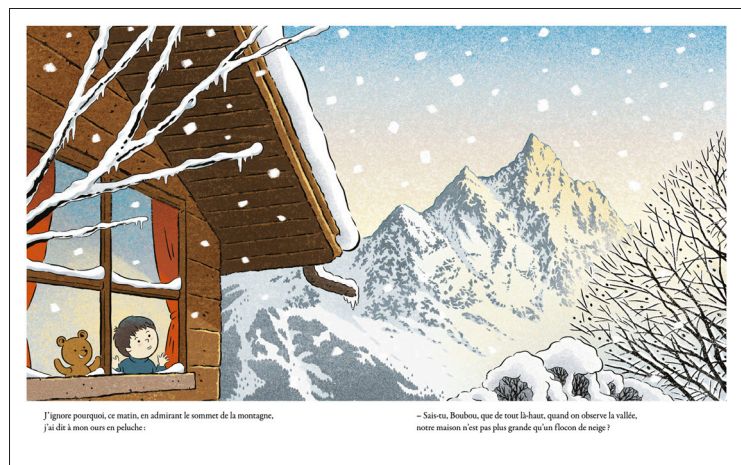

By Kiko

A young child and his teddy bear set off high into the mountains to solve this mystery, embarking on an adventure that reveals how perspective can change the way we see the world.

When a little boy claims that his house high above the valley is as small as a snowflake, his teddy bear refuses to believe him. Together, they set off on a snowy mountain adventure, crossing pine forests and making new friends along the way. As they journey higher, they discover that some things that seem big are smaller than they appear.

- Featuring breathtaking mountain landscapes, this charming and humorous story introduces children to the complex concept of perspective, showing how things can appear smaller from afar while exploring the world through an unforgettable adventure.

- A new picture book from author-illustrator Kiko, whose acclaimed and award-winning A Tale of the West captured readers' imaginations.

Dans un petit village, au pays de la neige, vohnt Nicolas, un vieux, cordonné.
Du matin au soir, il répare des souliers, dans une boutique dont la seule fenêtre,
en sautoir, s'ouvre au ruisseau du sud.
Quand il levait les yeux, il voyait par le vitrail les souliers de tous ceux qui marchaient dans la rue.
Quand il baissait le nez, il retrouvait les souliers usés de tous ceux qui avaient marché sur le trottoir, devant ses yeux.

Au fond de l'escalier, des souliers bouillonnent de vapeur.
Un peu de place pour la table et le lit.
A la lumière de la lampe et celle qui vient du sautoir,
Nicolas, les broches sur le nez, travaille.

Daytime Fear

La peur du jour

By Tristan Koëgel • Illustrated by Thierry Manès

When Mino, the (slightly over-) energetic little bat, goes to stay over at Grandpa's, adventure is guaranteed!

- Mino is going to sleep over at Grandpa Diego's. And since it will be nighttime, it's going to be wild! Daytime, on the other hand, is rather scary for him. What does his friend Jean-Luc the Pig think about it?
- Mino is constantly on the move... just like many children, right? That's what makes him so endearing... but also a little exhausting! Discover a new hero who feels very much of his time, reflecting today's children—often highly active!
- Thierry Manès' vibrant and generous illustrations (from the successful sound books published by Grund), combined with Tristan Koëgel's lively and genuinely humorous style, will delight children and their parents alike!
- In a small, highly affordable format, perfect for enjoyable reading, discover Mino's new world.

Mes tout premiers pourquoi Noah Learns Not to Hit

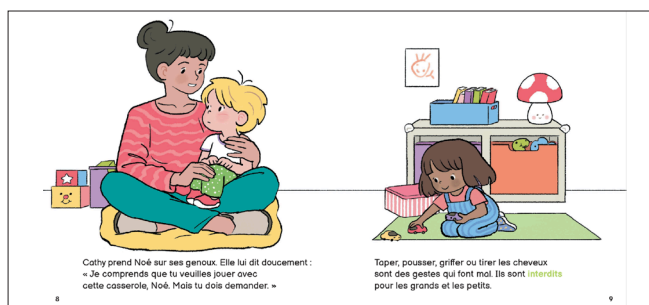

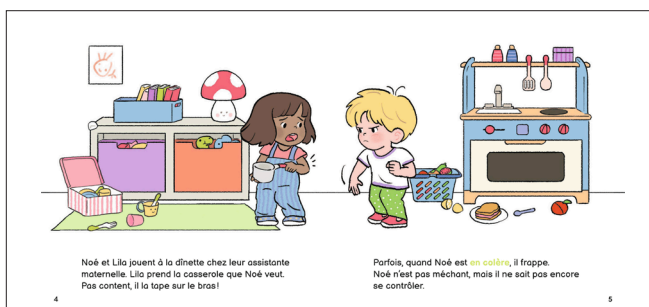

Noé apprend à ne pas taper

By Émilie Bélard • Illustrated by Vincent Roché

A title focused on so-called "aggressive" behaviors in young children, such as hitting and biting.

My Very First Whys helps young children understand their emotions, navigate everyday challenges, and grow with confidence. This book explains common behaviors such as hitting, biting, or pulling hair with kindness and reassurance.

- Sometimes children hit, bite, or pull hair. Across eight spreads, the book explores what these seemingly "aggressive" behaviors can mean, from seeking connection and expressing unmet needs to responding naturally to stress.
- Created in collaboration with Héroïse Junier, who shares practical advice at the end of the book. A developmental psychologist and early childhood educator, she is a well-known speaker, podcast guest, and Instagram creator.

The little book to talk about intimacy and consent

Le petit livre pour parler de l'intimité et du consentement

By Nadège Larcher and Sandra Laboucarie • Illustrated by Clotka

Privacy and consent are two themes that have been highly visible on bookstore shelves and in the media in recent years.

Consent is something that is learned from a very young age, even before addressing topics related to the prevention of romantic and sexual relationships. The notion of privacy is also essential to understand, starting around ages 6–7. That's the key aim of this little book!

- Consent is a learning process that concerns all children from the age of 6–7, and is at the heart of concerns for parents of both boys and girls.
- Highly illustrated everyday scenarios, concrete examples, simple practical advice, and dedicated pages for parents: a complete book to help children assert and protect their bodies and minds!
- Written by Nadège Larcher, a psychologist specializing in child development published in a highly popular “practical guides” collection among booksellers, with over 170,000 copies sold.

Vikings: Questions and Answers.

Les Vikings en questions

By Various Authors & Illustrators

Blending history, adventure, and Norse mythology, this book explores the world of the Vikings through 16 engaging questions.

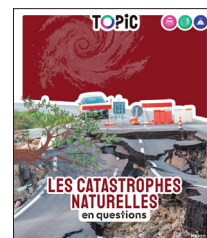

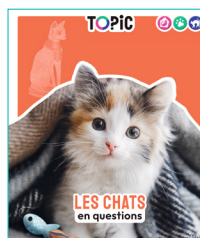

This volume explores 16 questions about the Vikings, including who they were, how they lived, why they raided, their ships, beliefs, rulers, and lasting legacy. With dynamic, video-inspired visuals and trusted documentary content, Topic brings Viking history to life in an accessible and entertaining way.

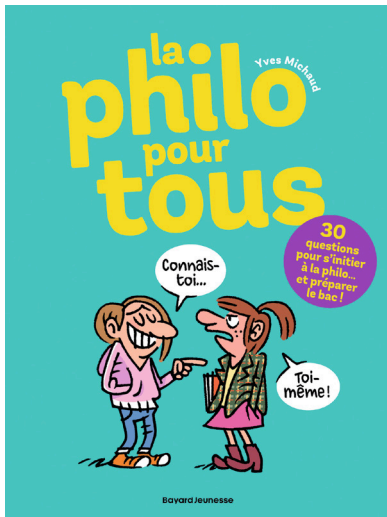

- In primary school, children encounter the Vikings as part of their study of the Middle Ages. Warriors, explorers, traders, and adventurers, who were the Vikings really? This book answers that question.
- This book uncovers the history, culture, and legacy of the Vikings for curious young readers.
- The content is validated by medieval history professor Alban Gautier (University of Caen Normandy) and enriched with surprising facts, including the remarkable Viking ancestry of both William the Conqueror and the current British royal family.

Search and Find: My Day at Preschool

Cherche et trouve - Ma journée à la maternelle

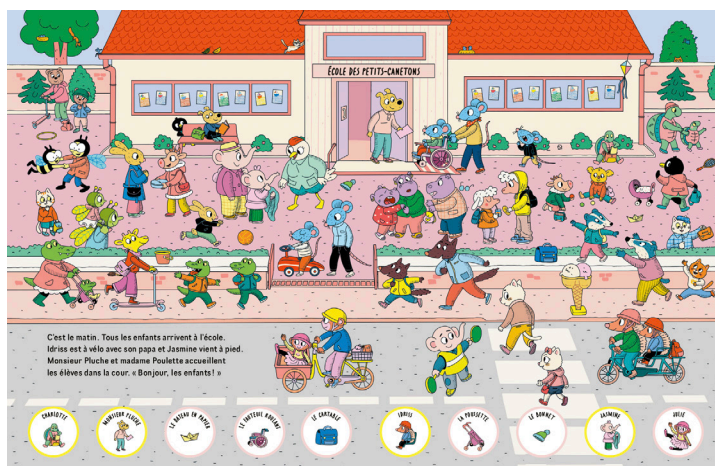

Illustrated by Armelle Modéré

A narrative search and find book for children aged 2 and up, inviting them to play along with a typical day at preschool.

A search and find book built around the different moments of a day at preschool. From arriving at school and recess to lunchtime and naptime, children follow eight lively scenes and search for 40 characters and 40 objects hidden throughout the pages.

Each scene begins with a short narrative read aloud by a parent, helping children become fully immersed in the characters' world. This shared reading experience turns the seek-and-find activity into a story, making the game even more engaging and interactive.

Dogs, cats, koalas, pigs, monkeys, elephants... a lovable cast of animal characters comes to life in bright, detail-rich illustrations designed to capture toddlers' attention and keep them engaged in the fun for hours.

This innovative concept combines two of children's favorite activities: coloring and stickers. Kids can color the stickers however they like, then use them to personalize their favorite belongings or create their own imaginative worlds by mixing and matching stickers from the book.

- An adorable pocket-sized book (13 × 17 cm) designed for on-the-go fun. Featuring over 50 repositionable stickers printed on coloring-friendly offset paper.
- Kids can personalize their notebooks, water bottles, phones, or tablets. They can even create their own little worlds by combining multiple stickers from the book!
- Illustrated by Nina Spicy in a delightful kawaii style, this book invites children to explore the charm of Japan through adorable characters, tasty treats, everyday objects, and other beloved symbols of Japanese culture.

Illustrated by Léa Fabre

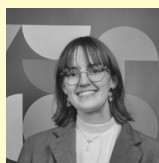

An incredible innovation: fully erasable paper. Color with washable markers, let dry for a few seconds, then wipe clean with a damp tissue.

This activity book offers a whole new coloring experience. No more painstaking work where children worry about making mistakes or coloring outside the lines. Instead, they can have fun drawing, doodling, and starting over as many times as they like.

- Color again and again with this reusable coloring book. Color, erase, and start over as often as you like. Test colors, draw, and doodle freely without worrying about mistakes. A new way to enjoy coloring!
- For optimal erasable coloring, use Poppik markers. Also works with any water-washable markers. Cleaner and more effective than plastic drawing boards, where traces of ink can remain after erasing.
- A practical spiral-bound format that can be displayed hanging or upright like an easel. Made with thick, high-quality paper for long-lasting use.

Dessin et coloriage - Lettering

Illustrated by Alexiane Davenport

12 detachable illustrated calligraphy artworks ready to be revealed in your own way: by tracing the lines to complete the drawing and adding color with pencils, markers, or paint.

This new creative activity is a gentle introduction to the joy of drawing. The illustrator invites children into her world by teaching them to draw in her unique style. And it's effortless, thanks to the lightly printed sketch already on the page.

- Beautifully crafted, this premium notebook is printed in France on extra-thick 300 gsm Munken paper. Its soft ivory paper offers exceptional detail clarity and a delightful tactile experience. Includes twelve detachable cards.
- A fun introduction to drawing. The artwork is printed in very light grey, like an illustrator's sketch. Just trace the lines with a black marker to bring the illustration to life.
- Express your creativity without limits. Each artwork can be enhanced using a variety of artistic techniques, including markers, colored pencils, pastels, watercolor pencils, water-based or alcohol-based markers, gouache, and even watercolor.

A Raindrop's Journey

Voyage d'une goutte de pluie

By Daniel Mar • Illustrated by Kiko

An original and innovative interactive book – discover the water cycle by moving the “raindrop” in the form of a little metal ball!

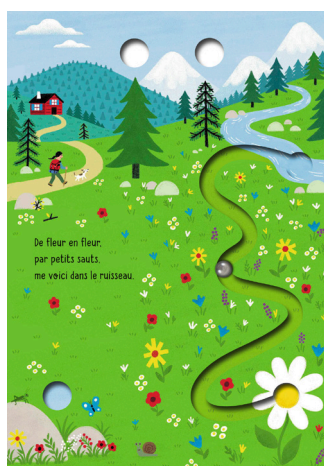

The reader is encouraged to move the little ball/raindrop along the grooved paths on the pages in the book.

Starting from a cloud, the ball/raindrop travels down a little stream, through a cows' trough, into a river, through a dam, water tower, and pipes, before cleaning a child's hands and heading to the water treatment plant, then to the river, the sea... and back to the cloud!

- The reader moves the little ball/raindrop through the water cycle. The reader plays an active part in this unique non-fiction book.
- Learning through touch and play; the child discovers the water cycle by guiding the ball along the grooves in the book, from a cloud to the sea, through a river, the pipes, and water treatment plant.

Featuring a steel marble that can be rolled through the pages.

I Know How to Pay Attention

Moi, je sais être attentif

By Marianne Vincent-Roman & Pascale Lesauvage • Illustrated by Raphaëlle Michaud

15 simple relaxation exercises, to do alone or together, helping children learn to calm down, breathe better, focus, and slow down.

- 15 simple exercises accessible to everyone, divided into four sections, addressing children's current needs: managing emotions, improving memory skills, learning through the body, and developing awareness of others.
- The two authors, who use this method in their practice and in schools, provide clear, step-by-step explanations through illustrated activities, in a collection dedicated to contemporary societal issues such as consent and screen use.

Mysterious Mazes in the Land of Fairy Tales and Legends

Mystérieux labyrinthes au pays des contes et légendes

By Céline Candie • Illustrated by Kevin Gauvin

Extraordinary mazes, each more amazing than the last, for hours of fun.

You're spending your holidays at your great-aunt Mélusine's house, helping her tidy up her attic. While moving an old costume trunk, you come across the book she warned you about: under no circumstances should you open it! But how can you resist? As you quickly flip through it, you are suddenly sucked into a world as fantastical as it is perilous...

Your mission: find your way back to your great-aunt's attic!

- 15 large, richly detailed mazes inspired by fairy tales and legends: wander through a knights' tournament, explore a dragon's secret cave, visit an enchanted fairy palace, and journey to the land of unicorns...

- An original concept for this age group and format: a choose-your-own adventure told through mazes, where you are the hero. Each maze leads to two exits—which one will you choose? Includes a bonus observation game on every spread.

- A variety of beautifully imagined and illustrated mazes by Kevin Gauvin, illustrator as well as an author and video game designer.

Agata Detective Advent Calendar

Calendrier de l'Avent Agata Détective

By Paul Martin • Illustrated by Camille Roy

An Advent calendar to solve a mini mystery each day with the heroine, Detective Agata.

Agata, the famous detective from Kittyville, has been urgently summoned by Santa Claus. He explains that his mechanical sleigh has been sabotaged: if Agata doesn't find the culprit, the delivery of presents will be impossible!

Agata launches her investigation, taking the opportunity to help the elves solve all their little problems along the way. With Agata, children must find Saga's ice skates, help Maja get out of her house, spot Leif's twin brother... and above all, help the detective discover who sabotaged Santa's sleigh, thanks to four clues hidden behind the windows.

• Agata the detective: a heroine on the rise! Over 200,000 copies of the puzzle books sold, and regular features in Pomme d'Api magazine (with an audience of 941,000 readers)!

Enigmes à tous les étages Riddles on Every Floor – Advent Calendar

Énigmes à tous les étages – Calendrier de l'avent

By Paul Martin • Illustrated by Léa German

The magic of Christmas takes the form of riddles: this year, Énigmes à tous les étages is getting into the Advent spirit!

Welcome to 20, Avenue Noël Lejoyeux. Christmas Eve is fast approaching, but a terrible event has shaken this building: Santa Claus has been kidnapped. His sack full of presents has been stolen, and his assistant has vanished too. Time has been frozen: the child has 24 days to solve the mystery!

Why not spend the countdown to Christmas immersed in the world of Énigmes à tous les étages? This Advent calendar invites you to open a little window each day, from December 1st to 24th, and solve a mystery. Each puzzle brings you closer to uncovering, on December 24th, who is behind Santa's disappearance.

- A unique concept in the world of Advent calendars: each day, solve a mystery to unmask the culprit on Christmas Day!
